A Glimpse at Patterns:

The Business of A University

No Bones

IT MAY BE an Operetta Guild production, or a Student Union dance. Maybe dates returning home after Carni Weekend. A date resting her feet.

Straining muscles at the goal line. A foot poised for power. An injury.

Activity abounds, and those involved go with gusto. It's a busy campus—growing, going, doing. Slowly, steady, then the burst that carries forward. It will be sustained in time to come.

But it's not cut off from the main current. It's in the midst of things. Even a dog can find a life to live and a place to live it here.

A Student Body On The Move

*Art's Beauty
In Motion*

BEAUTY may be seen as a reflection of light from a stationary object casting colored patterns for the Imagination's toy.

Or, as in the stroboscopic split-second flash, when motion is abruptly frozen, and the beauty of graceful lines and soaring symmetry is held at its own optimum point.

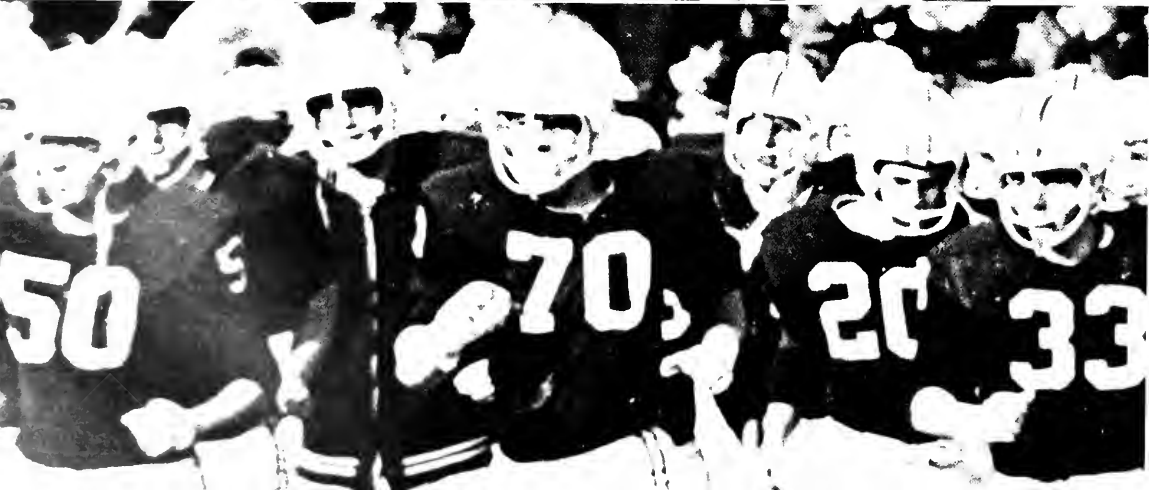

Beauty by any account doesn't stagnate. Even the stationary art easels cast their reflections; the girls of the Modern Dance Club run, leap, and bound.

No matter. The point is plain. While beauty may be in the eye of the beholder, it's a quick eye that catches it. For beauty is motion.

CENTENNIAL

An old grad looking for familiar landmarks!

As from 1863:

The Stockbridge House, a sugar maple tree,
Mount Warner, misty in antiquity—
These, Senator, reminding him of thee.

As from 1885:

Old South, the Chapel with its strident bell,
And Prexy's hillside house—these used to tell
That Colonel Clark and Chadbourne labored well.

As from 1923:

The War Memorial, Alumni Field,
Clark Hall, the Abbey—these have long revealed
How Butterfield adorned Old Aggie's shield.

And now as of to-day:

M Building is an all-but-idle shell,
The Chapel too, Abbey and Clark as well;
The chime forecasts their almost certain knell.

The old grad thinks of teachers he would praise,
The men who stirred one's soul in by-gone days.
Two buildings do commemorate a dean,
And others, presidents—a valiant corps;
But teachers serve behind the splendid scene,
And names like Waugh and Torrey mean no more
Than that of last year's shapely campus queen.

And so he longs for landmarks of the past,
The man-made landmarks that so seldom last.

He talks with friendly students in the Hatch,
But in the give-and-take he seems to catch,
Like the dull gnawing of an aging bone,
A dim premonitory undertone:
"Buildings? The Drill Hall! Well, as like as not They're better scrapped. They never were so hot.
To-day's the thing. Times aren't the way they were.
We have to move. You get the point, kind Sir?"

The old grad gets the point. At least he tries.
These boys so right! with sunrise in their eyes.

He looks across the pond at Morrill Hall
(The Senator's remembered after all).
He notes the rhododendron banks that lie
Where Metowampe scans the northern sky.
He sees the students trooping to and fro
With step elastic, faces all aglow.
From all directions, too, he thinks he hears
The clatter of construction engineers.

Then, suddenly, the old grad seems to see
The radiant landmarks of the Yet-to-be.

massachusetts life

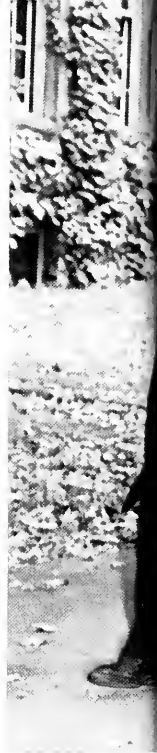

The emergence of the space age merely accents the need we have in this nuclear age to bring our social advances in line with our scientific progress. It is the need to find not only new biological insights into life but new insights into the manner of living it. . . . Man's knowledge has brought us closer to destruction than ever before in history, but perhaps through more conscious effort the expansion of knowledge that our voyages into space will surely bring us, we will be able to absorb some moral values which thus far have eluded us. . . . We can have no guarantees but we can hope for new moral insights as well as physical ones as we struggle to learn. But whether we achieve them or not, we shall have to go on seeking to increase our knowledge, if only as an act of faith. We have no alternative, for without knowledge, we are doomed, while with it, there is always the possibility of more complete understanding.

John J. McCloy, "Challenge to Greatness"

Dr. William Ross, recipient of Distinguished Teacher Award

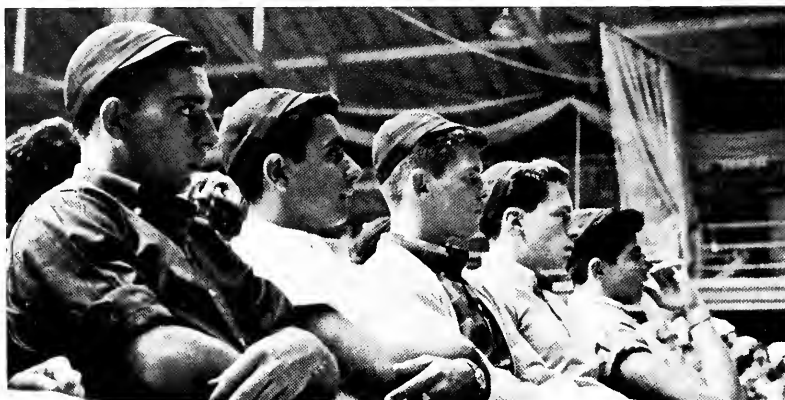

McCloy Keynotes Centennial Convocation

THE Centennial Year Celebration was officially started October 4, 1962 with the Centennial Convocation, held on the Student Union lawn. Some 2500 students, alumni, faculty, and friends of the University observed the colorful exercises.

After the impressive procession, Centennial Chairman, James T. Nicholson, opened the ceremony, over which President John W. Lederle presided. Greetings from the Commonwealth were extended by Governor John A. Volpe.

The keynote address was presented by John McCloy, Chairman of President Kennedy's General Advisory Committee on Disarmament. He pointed to his alma mater, Amherst College, and the University as two institutions representing the "two distinctly American contributions which this country made to the advancement of education in the 19th century," meaning the liberal college and the land-grant college. The latter became, he added, "the answer to the needs of a developing community with a still-existing frontier. Today they have to adapt themselves to the just-as-acute problems which a highly developed society generates."

McCloy joined the presidents of the three neighboring colleges to receive honorary degrees. William H. Ross, professor of physics, was presented the University's first Distinguished Teacher Award.

of College Life*

The Lederles and Dr. Field greet frosh

BEANIES, beanies, everywhere—as another Freshman class invaded UMass in September.

Somehow the sneak preview provided by summer counseling seemed inadequate to the bewildered novices intent on solving the earliest problems of college life—housing, schedules, and occasionally, homesickness.

Their first few days were filled with especially planned events. Freshman Convocation highlighted the series of administrative greetings and warnings, and social events such as the Freshman Mix helped break the ice. Registration was an obstacle, but with the help of IBM, nearly all surmounted it. Classes were more of a problem, especially those eights and Saturdays. And that homework—"Gee, Ma, high school was never like this!"

Having survived a week or so of academics the frosh were invited to meet President Lederle and various members of the faculty and administration at the President's Reception.

On September 22, the Revelers sponsored the Freshman Ball—a new tradition at UMass.

The frosh became full-fledged members of the college community on October 18, when they voted for class officers. Elected were: Bernard Dallas, president; Milton Morin, vice-president; Carol Atwood, treasurer; Susan Swanson, secretary.

Under Milkwood Entwines Past and Present

SIMPLICITY of sets and conservative dress accented the superb acting by the Circle-in-the-Square Players in their presentation of Dylan Thomas's Under Milkwood.

Poignantly depicting a day of life in a Welsh sea-coast town, ten players, including two narrators, dramatized the interdependence of past and present, life and death, on a forty-foot stage.

Eight actors portrayed some 35 different characters, running the gamut of personality. Such diverse beings as Rev. Jenkins, Lord Cut Glass and Sinbad Sailors were all played by the same man.

The performance, attended by 850 people, was held in the Ballroom on October 9, and was sponsored by the Distinguished Visitors Program.

Homecoming Queen, Pam Chace

Homecoming '62

Biggest Ever

COLOR, excitement, and the largest turnout in UMass history marked the Centennial Homecoming.

A parade of more than fifty colorful floats, representative of the Centennial theme, traveled through Amherst Friday night, October 12. First prize for the sororities went to Pi Beta Phi while Thatcher won the honors for women's dormitories. Tau Kappa Epsilon won the fraternity competition and Van Meter placed first among men's dorms.

Following the parade, a spirited student body participated in the traditional pre-game rally, heard Coach Fusia promise to "scalp UConn," and then witnessed the crowning of Pam Chace as Homecoming Queen.

Preceding the game Saturday afternoon, invading alumni enjoyed a tailgate picnic. Later they helped to swell the Homecoming Crowd at Alumni Field to over 10,000.

The Redmen rewarded their enthusiastic spectators by trouncing the UConn Huskies. Sparked by Sam Lussier the UMass team dealt a 16-6 defeat to its arch-rival from Storrs.

An outstanding performance by the Band and Precisionettes added to the enjoyment of the day, as did the surprise arrival of Governor John Volpe at half-time.

Climaxing an eventful weekend were the annual Homecoming Dance and fraternity parties, given Saturday night. The Operetta Guild also contributed to the festivities with its lively presentation of "Guys and Dolls."

CAPTIVATING an eager and crowded Cage, the New Haven Symphony, led by Boston's Mr. Music, exhibited its versatility and leadership in the presentation of 20th century music on October 21.

Selections for the Sunday evening performance included Copeland's "Outdoor Overture," Khachaturian's "Sabre Dance" and excerpts from Bernstein's "West Side Story."

An enthusiastic audience demanded three encores before leaving.

Especially notable was guest pianist, Jerome Lowenthal's solo of Gershwin's "Concerto in F."

The appearance of the 70-piece orchestra under Arthur Fiedler was the first production in the Centennial Series sponsored by the University Concert Association.

Theme of 50th Hort Show

RIOT in the Cage—a riot of color that is, at the 50th annual Horticulture Show on November 2, 3, and 4.

To tie in with the centennial observance, the theme of the show was “100 Years of Horticulture.” The three stages of Massachusetts horticulture were represented showing the progress from Mass. Aggie, then Mass. State, and finally UMass. Fresh grass, towering trees, and multi-colored flowers were the background for the exhibits.

An added attraction was an exhibit of paintings by the late Ian MacIver, well-known water-colorist and one-time University faculty member.

UN Week Aids Dahomey Project

VARIOUS campus organizations sponsored UMass' first UN Week, October 21-27.

Among the many activities were: a speech by Senate candidate Stuart Hughes, an IFC—Panhel carnival, and a concert by folk singer Pete Seeger.

Proceeds from fund-raising events were donated to the Pilot Farm and Agricultural School in Dahomey (UNESCO Gift Project #319).

OFFERING a variety of programs and services, the Student Union is the center of UMass activity and leisure. Here religious offices, Senate Chambers, the Ballroom, meeting rooms, lounges, game areas, the barbershop, the bookstore and of course, the Hatch are found.

Several committees, headed and coordinated by the S.U. Program Council, organize activities for the entire school year. Included in the long list are dances, art exhibits, tournaments and movies, to name just a few.

As part of the development of the University as a whole, plans are being made to expand the Union to meet the needs of a growing student body.

ARRIVING in October, the first group of Peace Corps members to be trained at UMass prepared vigorously for their sojourn in the West African nations of Senegal, Niger, and the Ivory Coast.

These 67 trainees went through an intensified ten week schedule of American foreign policy, French, history and politics of West Africa, world affairs, communist philosophy and strategy, and work in their special fields of agriculture, athletics, and home economics. In order to complete over 600 hours of classes, the 55 men and 12 women kept up a grueling pace from 6AM to 10PM every day except Saturday afternoons and Sundays.

Even with a jam-packed schedule, two couples found time for romance and were married shortly before they left our campus. Another Peace Corps worker managed to win the Western Mass. Golden Gloves Welter Weight championship.

During their stay at UMass, the trainees worked closely with Matthew Blaisdell, Peace Corps training project director; James Ferrigno, director of the language program; and Russey D. Sumariwalla, Assistant Peace Corps Project Director.

UNIFORMED cadets, romantic music and a midnight brunch marked the first formal ball of the 1962-63 school year, held December 8.

Highlight of the evening was the caping of the new Honorary Colonel, Kathy Manning, by her predecessor, Sue Lydon. Prior to the caping ceremony the "colonels" and Miss Manning's court were escorted through the traditional arch of swords.

Following the Ball over 100 couples attended "Mili Munch" which transformed the Hatch into a formal dining room.

Students Manifest Christmas Spirit

DEMONSTRATED in various ways, the Christmas spirit pervaded UMass in December.

Parties, complete with Santa and presents, were given by the Greeks for local children. Arnold and Van Meter Dormitories entertained those at Belchertown.

Special Christmas services and a Chanukah festival were held by the different religious groups.

In addition to these activities certain private groups celebrated the holiday season in their own lively fashion.

FIREWORKS opened the 1963 Winter Carnival Weekend on Friday night, February 8. Following the display, a capacity crowd danced to the music of Buddy Morrow in the S.U. Ballroom and saw Lt. Gov. Francis X. Bellotti crown Miss Carol Ricci Winter Carni Queen of 1963. Runners up in the contest were Lee Davis, Janice Kwapien and Ellen Swartz.

An estimated 3000 were present at Saturday afternoon's spectator events. Three members of the UMass Parachute Club staged a jumping exhibition at the campus pond. Following that, the Musigals, Statesmen and Amherst Zumbyes gave a concert on the South Patio of the S.U.

Snow sculptures entered in the Carni Sculpture Contest drew large crowds Saturday and Sunday. Winners for the sorority contest were: Tri Sigma, first; SDT, second; Pi Phi, third. Winners for the girls' dorms were: Thatcher, first; Hamlin, second; Crabtree, third. Winners in the fraternity battle were: Theta Chi, first; Alpha Sigma Phi, second; TKE third. Boys' dorms winners were: Greenough, first; Brett, second; Chadbourne, third.

Fraternities and sororities also competed for awards in toboggan races Saturday morning, and men's dormitories and fraternities participated in a log-sawing contest Saturday afternoon.

Carni ended Sunday afternoon with the Winter Carni Jazz Concert. About 3500 persons heard the Chad Mitchell Trio perform in the Cage.

The Weekend's attendance was estimated to be 43,000—the largest ever reported at UMass.

CENTENNIAL year marks the opening of two new men's dormitories on campus, Brett and Gorman. It also saw the transformation of Brooks, previously a men's dorm, into a residence for women.

When the oldest dormitory, Abigail Adams House, was destroyed by fire Saturday night, October 27, a clothing pool and a special fund were established to help alleviate personal losses. Second semester, the traditional spirit of The Abbey moved with the girls to their second home, Plymouth House.

A CALENDAR of social events between the dormitories is coordinated by the members of the Women's Interdorm Council and the newly formed Men's Interdorm Council. Composed of representatives from each dormitory, they also participate in all-campus activities such as U.N. Week and SWAP.

BEGINNING with the Circle in the Square presentation of Dylan Thomas' Under Milkwood, the Distinguished Visitors Program Committee presented a variegated series ranging from comedy to pending national issues.

Comedian-pianist Henry Scott was followed by CBS News Commentator, Eric Saverid. The highlight of the year was a symposium on Federal Aid to Education which brought together distinguished lawmakers, educators, and alumnus-journalist, Louis Lyons.

A unique group composed of students and faculty, the Distinguished Visitors Program was initiated three years ago for the purpose of bringing unusual offerings to the campus.

STRANGE sights around campus—misplaced eyes, numerous scars, and various misshapen features. No, it wasn't an invasion, only UMOC—the Ugly Man on Campus contest. Sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega, National Service Fraternity, UMOC benefited the Campus Chest Drive.

Voting was accomplished by donations; one cent in a candidate's jar equaled one vote. Pictures of each candidate in make-up and costume, if necessary, were posted in the S. U. lobby for several days. Baker Dormitory was this year's winner.

Proceeds from the contest and the campus chest drive, amounting to well over $2500, were used to provide scholarships to UMass students and to aid foreign students through the World University Service.

George R. Kaplan

Common Market Topic of 10th International Weekend

“A Country Called Europe” was the theme of the University’s tenth annual International Weekend. George R. Kaplan, a 1947 graduate of UMass, started the weekend on March 15 with the keynote address entitled “The United States and the New Europe.” Kaplan is an international relations officer in the U. S. Department of State.

Under the guidance of Prof. Cecil Cody, student committees arranged two panels in which distinguished guests participated. The first, held Saturday morning, discussed American trade interests in the Common Market. Saturday afternoon, the second panel considered political implications of the Common Market.

Spring Arrives- At Last!

SNOW and ice lingered throughout March, but at last, in April, spring arrived. Winter coats, ski pants, snow-boots disappeared, and in their place, sweatshirts, bermudas, and dirty sneaks. True to UMass tradition, mud was abundant.

As the sun rose higher and the mud finally hardened, sun-worshipping became a most popular pastime. Armed with lotion, dark glasses and transistor radios, the devotees thronged to residence lawns and the campus pond. Even term papers and finals could not discourage the more fanatical who brought pens, books and notes out with them.

academic life

Mr. Chairman, Mr. President, distinguished guests, members of this great academic community, ladies and gentlemen:

The committees responsible for this and the several events that will follow, all of them designed to give substance to a great opportunity, have called their total program "The Centennial Year."

The learned editors of the Massachusetts Review, I am told, refer to it as the "Centennary." Our British friends that speak English, and avoid speaking American, would disagree with us all. They call it a "Centenary" (Ed. note: pronounced sen-teen-ary). Call it! Spell it! pronounce it as one will! It really makes little difference.

How we observe it; how we utilize the opportunity it affords, is really what matters most. Consequently we do not propose to celebrate something that has come to an end—is over—completed. Assuredly we should, and we will, pay tribute to the great genius of our University's past, and of the promising auguries of the future and the present.

However, we believe our efforts will be made the more productive as we contribute to the building of a greater University in the years to come, a University vastly surpassing in depth and breadth of achievement the extent of its physical growth; a University ever growing in service to the needs of the people of their Commonwealth and of their Nation; a University characterized, to an ever increasing degree, as a wellspring of not only intellectual, but also, of moral greatness.

Now this is a big order, and there is much to be done in the second century of the University's progress.

Hence, Mr. President, without further loss of time (and since we haven't a tree to plant or a ribbon to cut) on behalf of the [Centennial] Committee and of the entire University community, I declare the Centennial Year of the University of Massachusetts officially inaugurated.

—Dr. James T. Nicholson

University

Strides To Excellence

Under Lederle

THIS academic year has been one of far-reaching dimensions for the University of Massachusetts. Under the direction of President John W. Lederle, many changes and innovations have been enacted.

Of chief importance to the University's future plans is fiscal autonomy. Passed by the state legislature in 1962, this was the first year which saw the system put to a real test. The system allows financial independence aimed at facilitating University expansion plans which have been announced by President Lederle as being both in physical and academic spheres.

The Honors Colloquia Program has taken a large step forward this year as it expanded to include all classes. The program serves to instill the desire to follow educational pursuits for their intellectual value.

Under President Lederle, research has become a vital concern. Qualified seniors are participating in the Honors Research Program in nearly all departments. Presently graduate English students may earn credit toward a doctorate. Freshmen engineering students may now attend a pre-registration math program which equips them to meet the rigid requirements of their first year program.

THE University of Massachusetts is state supported, and as such comes under the direction of the Governor of the Commonwealth.

In his position as a member of the Board of Trustees, Ex Officio, Governor Endicott Peabody plays a fair part in the excellence attained and proposed for the University of Massachusetts.

University Matters:

A Statewide Concern

DR. FRANK L. BOYDEN is one of those rare individuals, who in his own lifetime, has influenced hundreds of men, and whose personal life has been an example to all who have come in contact with him.

Called "one of the nation's leading educators" by Time magazine, he received scores of tributes across the country. Not the least of these are his former students, now important men in all walks of life, who are living tributes of the man's dedication and approach to education.

Dr. Boyden, a University trustee for 16 years and presently Chairman of the Board of Trustees, is also an Adelphean by virtue of recognition from UMass Adelpheans. September, of 1963 will see the dedication of the Frank L. Boyden Physical Education Building, a further tribute from the University.

THE Hatch, the classrooms, the offices—all are the realm of Dean of Students, William F. Field. With the deans of the separate colleges, and of Men and Women, he aids in creating a strongly beneficial position on campus for the student. Dean Field can always find time for that special problem and for the individual.

GILBERT L. WOODSIDE, as Provost of the University, assists the President in all academic matters. In this capacity, Dr. Woodside has spurred many of the academic developments of the University.

ALTHOUGH a rookie on the UMass administration team, Dr. John W. Ryan has quickly stepped to a first team position. As Secretary of the University, and Assistant to the President, Dr. Ryan has had a busy, yet successful, initial year.

An expert in the field of Thailand government and administration, Dr. Ryan has also taught Political Science. Presently he is serving as Associate Director of the Centennial.

Dr. Ryan is a man readily available and helpful wherever he may be needed.

"IT is our intent to develop the Centennial in such a way as to commemorate the past, to respect the present, and, most important, to look to the future"—so spoke Dr. James T. Nicholson, '16, General Chairman for the UMass Centennial.

The now retired executive Vice President of the American National Red Cross, Dr. Nicholson has served actively throughout the world in humanitarian pursuits. For this he has received recognition from more than 23 countries including the French Legion of Honor.

Dr. Nicholson also has worked actively with UMass as evidenced by his many alumni activities. He is currently serving as Director of the Associate Alumni and helped to launch the Massachusetts Review.

LITERALLY, "emeritus" means 'on the shelf.' Max Goldberg '28, the first Commonwealth Professor Emeritus, actively refutes its connotation. Throughout the 35 years of his career, he has promoted scores of innovations and advancements for education in general, and the University in particular.

Although now at Pennsylvania State University, Dr. Goldberg is still working for his alma mater. Proclaimed the Executive Director of the UMass Centennial, he is a living example of the dedicated men who have led the University to its high level today.

Joint Action

In Ivied Halls

WITHIN a radius of 10 miles in the Pioneer Valley, four distinguished educational institutions are to be found. It is in proximity that Smith, Mount Holyoke, Amherst, and the University of Massachusetts have found a certain strength; and through cooperation they have contributed to a program designed to increase their joint educational opportunities without loss of their educational identities.

Since its inception in 1957, the Four-College program has grown quickly and gained the attention of the academic world. Its benefits are numerous—both to the cooperating schools and the participating students. Under the plan, a student may take courses not offered at his school at any of the other schools offering the desired courses. More than 300 students were attracted to the plan last year.

Some of the projects made available to the participating colleges are: a joint astronomy program; Non-Western Studies program; the Massachusetts Review; a joint Ph.D. program; a film center; WFCR, an educational FM radio station; and the Hampshire Inter Library Center, housed at the University's Goodell library. This depository contains rarely used books which had been duplicated by the four colleges, thus allowing the duplicate volumes to be sold for newer materials.

Joint committees from the participating colleges meet monthly to discuss ideas, problems, and future plans which may enable each school to grow within itself and within the community.

Sun, Studies at Summer School

SUMMER School at UMass is designed to aid those students who find they need special courses in the summer rather than during the normal academic year. There is diversity in the courses offered from the regular undergraduate catalog in addition to special programs for Teacher Certification, Nursing, Engineering, and Home Economics. Many freshmen who wish to complete a university education in less than four years begin their college careers the summer after High School graduation. 1962 also began a two-week freshman "summer camp" program for engineers which met with considerable success.

Every Wednesday, 250 beaming sub-freshmen are introduced to UMass campus life during a 3-day period of testing and counselling. The days when freshmen are not here are shared with many conference groups throughout the summer.

There were picnics . . . and swimming . . . and classes . . . and we needed those bikes

Growing Graduate School

An intent grad student ponders over an experiment in psychology lab

DEDICATED to the ideal of the advancement of knowledge for the qualified student, the University's graduate school offers the sincere student the opportunity to rise to new academic heights by advancing himself in specialized study and research.

With an enrollment of 1,563 in the College of Arts and Sciences, the graduate school has many students working toward a master's degree in the fields of government, chemistry, and psychology. Including the other colleges of the University, the Graduate School has now expanded to a total enrollment of 2,396 students.

A cooperative Ph.D program has been established by the University, Amherst, Mt. Holyoke, and Smith Colleges. Departments here at the University offering this cooperative Ph.D. degree are: all departments in biological sciences, chemistry, French, geology, German and English.

Under Direction of New Dean

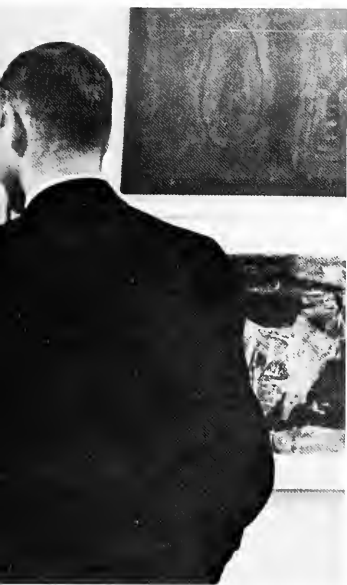

COMING here this year from the University of Idaho where he was chairman of the philosophy department, Dean Edward C. Moore has plunged vigorously into his post as Dean of the Graduate School.

Receiving his master's degree in Education Administration from Western Michigan University, and his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees in philosophy from the University of Michigan, Dean Moore is currently president of the Charles S. Pierce Society.

At the University, he has made it a point to attract industry's interest as a means of expanding the burgeoning graduate program.

UMass Paints Progress Through Pictures

ART exhibits come and go, but the University has one that's here to stay. Just a year old, the collection is the result of many gifts from artists, galleries, students, faculty, alumni and friends of the University who gave to the Art Acquisition Fund. The fund was initiated by the Department of Art in January 1962 to provide students with a collection of original works of art to study and, between January 1962 and January 1963, sixty-eight original works were obtained.

To acquire drawings is the chief aim of the program, but the collection also includes paintings, prints and sculptures, with the main emphasis on contemporary works. Along with its permanent collection, plans have been made to institute a study collection where worthy students and relatively unknown artists will have their works placed. The collection will eventually be housed in the gallery of the proposed Fine Arts Center, with new acquisitions being exhibited annually.

Mr. Walter Kamys of the University's Art Department is the director of the Acquisition Fund. Mr. Kamys points to a two-fold purpose for the new art collection: "To provide students with original works for study of meaning, style, and technique and supply the University with the nucleus for building a gallery of original art which will be a strong contribution in this field."

Among the other notable exhibits held on campus were the collection of Ian Mac Iver's works assembled by his friends in his memory and the impressionistic oil paintings by Jacques Callaert of Ostende, Belgium on exhibit in the Student Union.

4-College Originated Massachusetts Review One Of Top Literary Magazines In Country

Frederick C. Ellert, Co-editor

GOING into its fourth year, the Massachusetts Review has risen in the ranks of literary magazines to become one of the top five in its field in the country. Now a four college enterprise, it draws its funds primarily from the University, with Mount Holyoke, Smith, and Amherst Colleges contributing.

Co-editors Sidney Kaplan and Frederick C. Ellert accept manuscripts from all over the world. A great majority of articles are written by people from other schools while some are contributed by non-academic people. When the magazine first originated it was necessary to solicit articles; presently, however, a dozen articles are received each day.

With a borrowed three hundred dollars the editors launched the Mass. Review four years ago. Now it is being read in Boston and San Francisco, in Ottawa and in New Orleans, in Houston and Honolulu, in Tokyo, Amsterdam, Munich, Vienna and Rome. The British Museum subscribes to it. So does the Amerikansk Institutt in Oslo, the USIS Library in Trieste, the American Memorial Library in Berlin, and the Library of the Academy of Sciences of the USSR in Leningrad.

When Is University Press Not University Press?

IN fact there is no University Press.

Because it would take a bundle of money to buy presses, to build a press plant, to maintain the presses, to buy stock for the various publications, and, most important, because the University doesn't have the money.

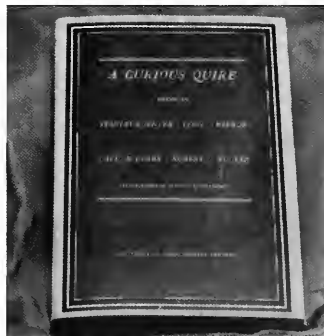

But to serve the purpose, a University Press Committee was established. And though they don't do the actual printing, they do everything else.

The Press Committee is the first step toward a full-fledged University Press. To this end, Professor Sidney Kaplan of the English Department works as head of the committee.

Operating under University Research Council grants, the University Press published A Curious Quire by UMass poets Stanley Kohler, Leon O. Barron, David R. Clark, and Robert G. Tucker, all of the University's English Department. Illustration for the volume consisted of five lithographs by Donald R. Matheson of the University's Art Department.

The work of Sidney Kaplan, Chairman of the University Press Committee, is aimed at a full-fledged University Press.

An informal colloquia meeting—the beginning of independent thought. . .

Michele Abladian puts finishing touches on her Botany Honors Problem which she began this past summer on an N.S.F. summer grant.

Honors Program Stimulates the Undergraduate UNTIL 1960, the Honors Program at the University was offered to seniors only as a research problem. To celebrate the centennial year, members of the class of 1963 were invited to become members of various colloquia groups run as very relaxed seminars, usually in a professor's home. At present, select members of all classes other than seniors are involved with work in Honors Colloquia.

The Colloquia have been very successful in stimulating the desire to study certain problems within a student's field and in preparing the student for independent thinking.

Susan Spearen, senior government major, uses the card catalogue as a basic source for her honors project.

In the sciences, an honors problem involves little resource work and more research. Elaine Chomyn and Steven Harrigan, both working under the supervision of Dr. J. L. Roberts, are refining laboratory techniques for their problems.

Alpha Lambda Delta Honors Fresh Women

IN its many years on campus, Alpha Lambda Delta has honored Freshmen and Sophomore women. All freshmen who earned a 3.5 or higher grade average during their first semester are eligible for membership. This honor society is under the guidance of Eva Schiffer and Dean Curtis.

Alpha Zeta Encourages Achievement

CHARACTER, leadership and a spirit of fellowship in the agricultural profession is Alpha Zeta's main purpose. Its members are selected from each of the departments of the College of Agriculture. Alpha Zeta attempts at all times to promote the college, and to encourage scholastic achievement among its students.

Beta Gamma Sigma Celebrates 50th Year

BETA GAMMA SIGMA, celebrating its 50th year, encourages and rewards scholarship and accomplishment in the field of business studies among students and graduates of collegiate schools of business. Beta Gamma Sigma also promotes the advancement and spread of education in the science of business; and fosters principles of honesty and integrity in business practice.

Seniors must have a 3.0 cumulative point average and juniors must rank in the upper four per cent of their class to be members.

Membership in Beta Gamma Sigma is the highest scholarship honor a student in business administration can win.

ALL university men with a 3.5 grade average for the first semester are eligible to belong to Phi Eta Sigma. The purpose of the society is to recognize outstanding scholastic achievement by freshman men and to encourage a higher standard of learning among all freshmen.

This is accomplished by the tutoring service that Phi Eta Sigma offers each year to members of the Freshmen Class.

62 Phi Kappa Phi Scholars Honored

PHI KAPPA PHI, the national all-university scholastic honor society was founded in 1897 with two ruling purposes: One is the conviction that by recognizing and honoring those who have excelled in scholarship, other students may be inspired to work for high standing. The other is the belief that scholarship is universal, not limited. One of the highest scholastic honors at UMass is an undergraduate's election to the society in his junior or senior year. Faculty and graduate students are also eligible for election.

New Honorary

NEWEST national honorary society at the University of Massachusetts is Xi Sigma Pi, National Forestry Honorary Fraternity.

Installed on campus in November, the local chapter plans a newsletter and a big brother system of senior and junior advisers for freshmen interested in forestry as a major course of study.

Members are chosen from the upper one-fourth of their class to "secure and maintain high standards of scholarship in forestry education."

Four Awarded Woodrow Wilson Grants

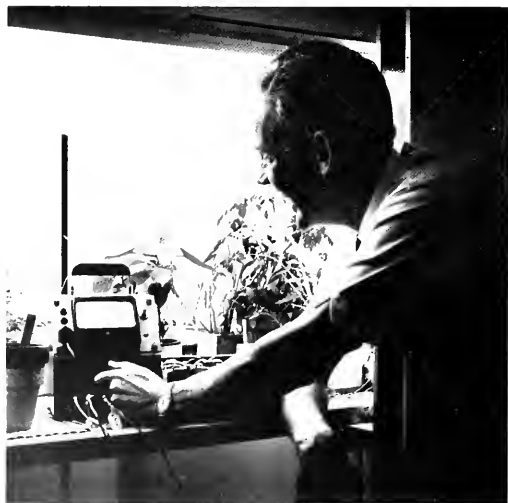

FOUR seniors were awarded Woodrow Wilson Fellowships for first year graduate study at the colleges of their choice. Man's Future Sought In Biological Research

BEHIND the classroom scene on this campus and throughout the country, professors and instructors are involved with research in various fields of biology.

Supported by the National Science Foundation, Public Health, the state, and other grant giving institutions, professors, usually seen only in the classroom, spend many devoted hours in laboratories throughout campus, looking for answers to problems in their own special area of biology. The answers they derive are only a small fraction of the total, but the total would not be possible had not these hands and minds looked into the future of man.

Chemistry Department Engages in Dynamic Research

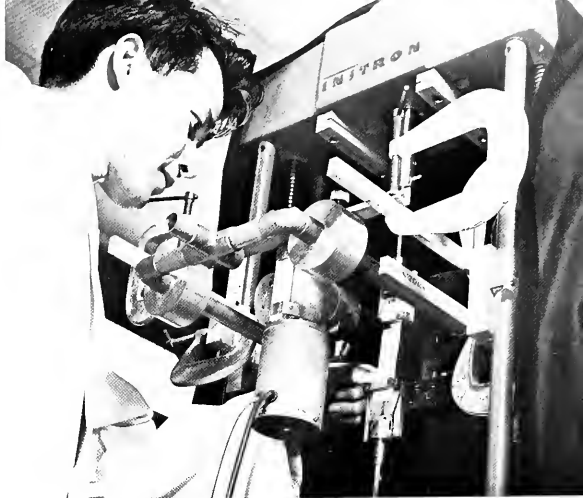

GRADUATE study in chemistry and allied fields is the end in view for over half the undergraduate chemists at UMass. Nevertheless, a B.S. in chemistry places the graduate in equally great demand by industry, research foundations, and government laboratories.

Having built a solid intellectual foundation, seniors and graduate students carry on extensive work in research projects. Graduate students work in teams headed by staff members. Senior research is carried out under two programs. In Chemistry 98, any senior may undertake a problem for one semester under the supervision of a staff member. Under the Honors program, academically qualified seniors carry on research for the entire year. In addition, undergraduate students have received National Science Foundation grants for research to be conducted during the summer.

Physics Department Provides For Undergraduate Research

Physics department chairman Dr. John Trimmer prepares apparatus for experimental work

ACCORDING to Dr. John Trimmer, Chairman of the Department of Physics, graduates go on to masters' degrees and doctorates most frequently from schools in the New England area. In preparation for advanced degrees, UMass students are given ample opportunity for research while undergraduates here.

Besides the regular senior honors program, undergraduates may participate in an older research program financed by grants received by the physics department from the National Science Foundation. Candidates for bachelor degrees work with graduate students and professors on their problems.

Established in September of 1961, the Institute serves as a center for analysis of structure and changes in contemporary Massachusetts population, and publishes a series of working papers on major aspects of Massachusetts demographic structure. In the Institute's headquarters in Machmer Hall, information is accumulated, calculated, and analyzed.

UMass History Far-flung, Dr. Cary Finds

UMASS makes history; its own! The University of Massachusetts: A History of One Hundred Years, was authored by Harold Cary, professor of history.

"One of the major difficulties," Professor Cary noted, "was the gathering of materials. The materials were scattered from the University of Michigan to the Library of Congress, and from Goodell Library to the several libraries in Boston."

The history begins with the 56 students admitted to the first class and ends with the 7600 undergraduate and graduate students currently enrolled. Three main periods of the University's development are covered—1863 to 1931—when the institution was known as Massachusetts Agricultural College; 1931 to 1947 when it was Massachusetts State College; and 1947 to the present, as the University.

Francis I. Broadhurst, Centennial Staff Assistant, and Miss Mildred O'Brien, Centennial Secretary, make up the full time Centennial Office staff.

Centennial Staff Promotes Observance

GROUNDWORK for the University of Massachusetts' Centennial observance was effectively laid by two alumni: Chairman James T. Nicholson '16, and Executive Director Maxwell H. Goldberg, '28.

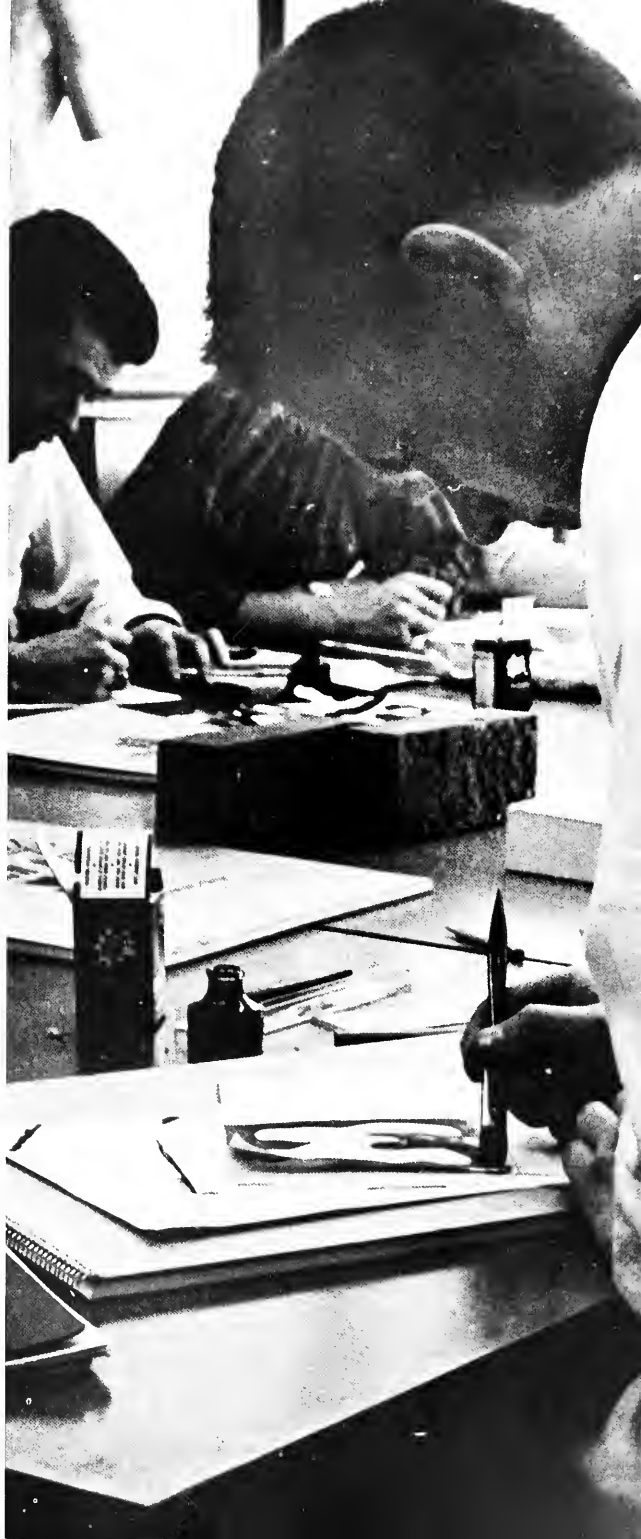

Two other members of the Centennial Office staff who have kept the Centennial observance moving smoothly are Francis I. Broadhurst, Centennial Staff Assistant, and Miss Mildred M. O'Brien, Centennial Secretary.

Mr. Broadhurst, a member of the Class of '62, is a former newspaper reporter who joined the Centennial staff in September. Miss O'Brien, who has been a secretary at the University since 1954, is serving her second year as Centennial Secretary.

Their responsibilities since September, when the actual observance got underway, have been three-fold: co-ordination and execution of programs calendered for the Centennial; public information work calling attention to the University in its Centennial year; and co-ordination of Centennial activities carried on by alumni, students, and other University related groups.

"Distribute Abundance,"

Urges Murray Lincoln

CONTINUE our Revolution of 1776" and "distribute abundance . . . around the world," urged Murray Lincoln '14 at the Centennial Honors Convocation of the College of Agriculture.

Murray Lincoln, one of the University's most distinguished alumni, is well versed in the field of foreign aid.

Now president of Nationwide Insurance Company, Mr. Lincoln was founder and first president of CARE. Still involved in humanitarian endeavors, he is presently a member of the Advisory Council to the Peace Corps and Chairman of the Food for Peace Task Force.

In his address Mr. Lincoln saw the University, and especially the College of Agriculture and the Extension Service, as particularly capable of accomplishing the distribution of abundance throughout the world.

He praised the College of Agriculture and the University for their contributions to the nation and the world, but stated that the effort must be doubled to "eliminate all the age-old scourges of mankind—hunger and disease and poverty."

College Of Agriculture: Grand Dame

Of The University Of Massachusetts

IN the beginning was the College of Agriculture, and the University of Massachusetts sprang forth from it.

It is the oldest of the nine schools and colleges, and has been in existence since the inception of the Commonwealth's land-grant institution. Like the University of which it is a part, the College of Agriculture has changed to meet the demands of the times.

Vocational and practical farming, which were the original purposes of the college have become a small part of today's work. Presently technological problems in processing and marketing have gone to the fore. Laying a basic scientific foundation for highly commercialized Massachusetts farming has become one of the college's special problems.

Thus the College of Agriculture, the second largest division of the University, trains more than 850 students to meet the demands of the nation's consumers. This training is accomplished in the four-year program of the College of Agriculture and in the two-year program of the Stockbridge School.

The changing scene at the College of Agriculture: Latest technology and methods of production are employed in wood processing, a virtually unknown area of study in 1863.

Diversified Studies

Meet Today's Needs

AGRONOMY, dairy and animal science, agricultural and food economics, agricultural engineering, entomology and plant pathology are the traditional major fields of concentration for nearly 400 students in the four-year program.

However, other major areas of study not commonly associated with production agriculture are also offered. Food science and technology, forestry and wildlife management, horticulture, landscape architecture, and poultry science are these other diversified areas of study geared to meet modern living.

Pomology aids Massachusetts' fruit growers

Poultry science is vital to commercial production

Winter temperatures in plants and soil under snow and mulches aid in the important Massachusetts floriculture industry

GAS chromatography—Vapor Fractometer Recorder—these are tongue twisting appellations given to a process and a piece of apparatus which may one day make possible the manufacture of food flavors.

But more important than ersatz flavor is the chemical make up of flavor which can be of aid to problems of food storage, spoilage, and preparation.

Food technology, a department of the College of Agriculture, meets these food problems head-on in its concern with the processing, preservation, and packaging of foods and food products.

Students meet these problems through the application of scientific principles of the natural sciences.

COMPUTER scheduling made its debut this year at UMass and has been considered on the road to success by H. Hills Skillings, Assistant Professor of mathematics and University Scheduling Officer. With the help of the IBM Corporation and the MIT Computation Center, Skillings had done four years of preliminary research.

In past years, scheduling was the result of a large number of faculty members, a lot of time, and some luck. This year, however, the computers have efficiently produced class schedules for 6,200 students enrolled in 1900 different sections of 700 courses in classes led by more than 500 faculty members in 500 classrooms, not to mention the 900 graduate students and 450 students in Stockbridge School of Agriculture.

Greater efficiency is the result, for the computers match class size to room size, thus giving maximum use of facilities by the hour, day, and week. Now, the faculty, who had to spend much of their time scheduling, can devote more time to advising and counseling.

Along with the scheduling uses of computers in South College, the machines are also used for class rosters, payrolls, and inventory.

Redmen Runner-up

In YanCon

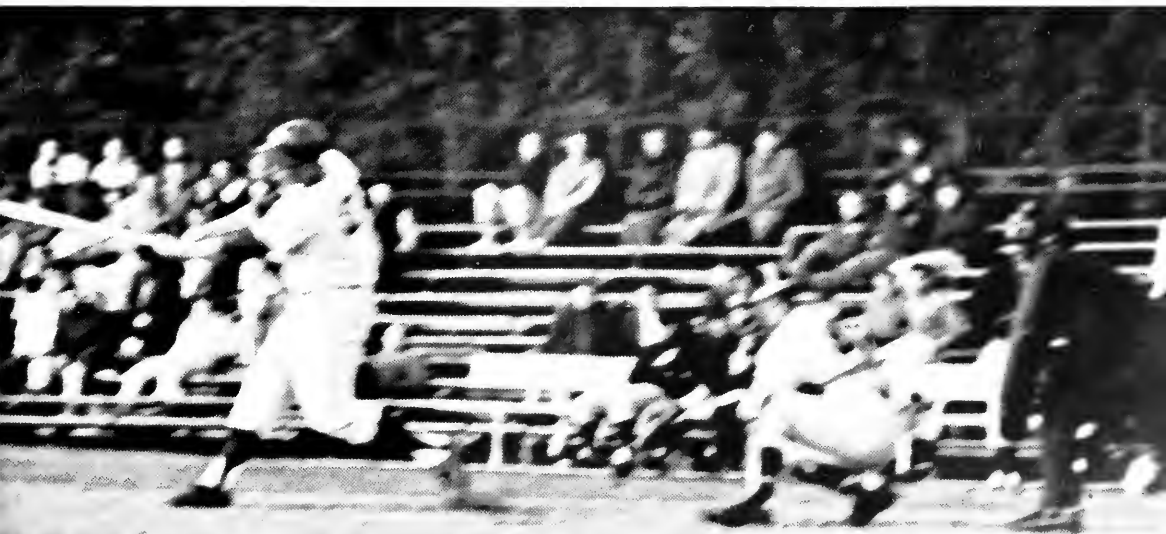

TWO straight losses at the hands of Vermont smashed the YanCon title hopes of the 1962 Redmen. Earl Lorden's nine finished the season with a 15-4 slate which tied a previous season's record.

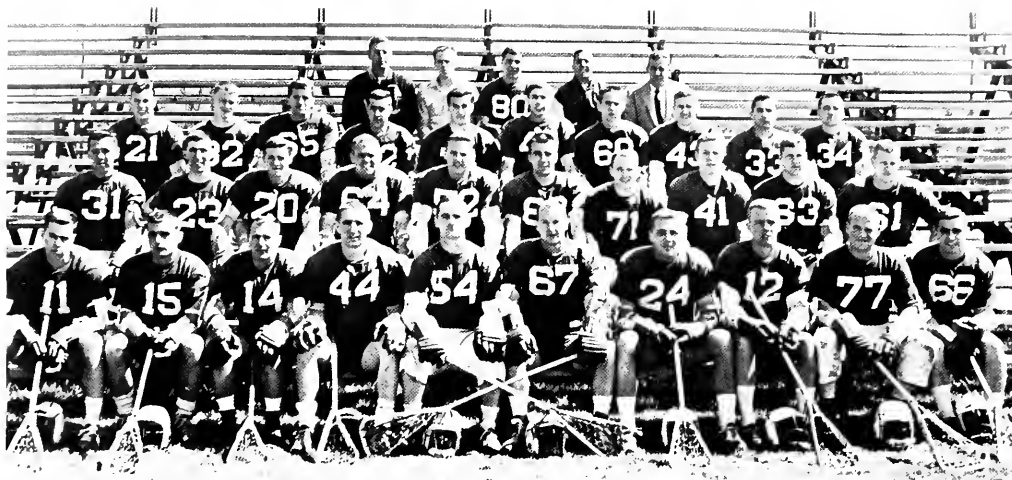

The Redmen broke fast and reeled off five straight wins before losing to URI 5-4. Capt. Frank Pisiewski and Carl Elmstrom spurred the team to another five game winning streak; Holy Cross ended this one 3-2 in the ninth inning. Dreams of a championship vanished the following weekend as UVM's Catamounts went home to the Green Mountains with 6-0 and 4-3 victories.

Individual efforts did not go unrewarded as Tony Williams, Frank Pisiewski, and Red Forbush were All YanCon Selections. Pisiewski, given All-New England honors, signed with the Boston Red Sox last fall, as did Bill Delvecchio, while Carl Elmstrom is now playing in the Milwaukee Brave's chain.

Many returning veterans should lead the Redmen to that coveted title. Back for another season are Pete Larkin, Bob Hughes, Tony Williams, and standout pitcher Dick Wilson. Larkin was the leading pinch-hitter in New England and his versatility was a great asset to the team.

Earl Lorden, Dean of New England coaches, is looking forward to a team that has the potential necessary for the YanCon Crown.

Snakebeaters Rack Up Best Yet: 9-2

DAVE Garber's Snakebeaters, led by Jim Ellingwood and John Bamberry, finished with the best season ever for a UMass team, 9-2.

Defeats at the hands of the Lord Jeff's of Amherst and UNH were compensated by decisive victories over such powerful opponents as Holy Cross, MIT, Tufts and Wesleyan.

A perennial power UMass led the New England Class "B" Division until the last few games.

Coach Garber is confident that his team will be in contention again this year, and looks forward to an even better record.

STEVE Kosakowski's Netsters finished the '62 season with a 5 and 4 record and the YanCon Championship. By whipping URI the Netmen captured the Championship for the seventh time since 1954. Roger Twitchell won top honors in the singles, with Capt. Tom Simons second. Tom Mendell and Dick Leete also placed thus giving UMass another successful Tennis season.

Tee-Off to Good Season

LAST year's edition of the Varsity Golf Team under the direction of Coach Chester Gladchuck compiled a creditable 6-5 record. Spearheaded by the fine play of Captain Barry Schmoeyer, the Redmen teed off with an opening victory over Lowell Tech. After dropping a match to New Hampshire, the team overpowered Vermont and A.I.C., then fell before W.P.I., Connecticut, and Rhode Island. None of the Redmen qualified for the final match play in the New Englands, yet R.P.I., Springfield, and Amherst were added to the list of Redmen victims.

Fifth in New England's

THE UMass runners and fieldmen had an excellent '62 outdoor season, ending with a 4-1 record. Besides all-round athlete Dick Ward, who led the Redmen to fifth place tie at the New England Intercollegiate Championships, the Redmen were sparked by performances of half-miler Ken O'Brien, distance men Bob Brouillet and Dave Balch, and pole vaulter Jim Lumley.

UMass holds Villanova's 1-foot line desperation plunge to save our sweetest win

FALL SPORTS

Good Year; But – Spilled The Beanpot

UMASS hopes for the 1962 Yankee Conference title were crushed by New Hampshire in the season's finale. A victory over highly touted Villanova the previous week made the Redmen heavy favorites to skin the Wildcats. Outscored 13-0 in the first half by an aroused UNH team, the Redmen roared back with touchdowns by quarterback Jerry Whelchel and halfback Sam Lussier in the second half. UMass' bid for a victory was thwarted by a fourth period UNH field goal that set the final score at 16-14 and enabled UNH to sneak out of Amherst with the beanpot. This crucial loss gave the Fusiamen a 6-3 season and put off hopes for their first Yankee Conference title for another year.

The Redmen opened the season with a 10-0 win over Maine. Lussier tallied the sole UMass score and George Pleau added a 16 yard field goal and an extra point. Highlighting the game was the signal calling of sophomore Jerry Whelchel and the defensive play of Dick Warren and co-captain Paul Majeski.

The following week the Redmen fell victim to the Ivy champs, Dartmouth, 27-3. The Indians exploded for 24 points in the second half after a 3-3 first half deadlock. Pleau's 27 yard goal accounted for the only UMass scoring.

UMass then traveled to Bucknell and came home with a great 21-20 comeback win. Speedy Loren Flagg scored all three TD's returning a kickoff 88 yards for a score and snagging touchdown tosses from Whelchel of 48 and 20 yards. Once again Majeski led the defense.

In the homecoming game the Redmen beat arch-rival Connecticut, 16-6. Whelchel, Kezer, and Pleau provided the scoring punch for the Redmen. Next, the Redmen ruined Rhode Island's homecoming with a great team effort, 42-8.

UMass then played host to Boston University and absorbed a 20-6 loss. The Redmen went on to humble Vermont by a score of 34-6.

The Redmen's sweetest win was an upset of bowl-bound Villanova, 19-18. A thrilling goal-line stand in the final seconds held the Wildcats in check after Whelchel tallied the tying touchdown followed by Pleau's conversion.

Coach Vic Fusia and his staff deserve credit for the spirit and determination that carried the Redmen to a fine 6-3 season. Many returning lettermen make the outlook for next year even more promising.

YanCon Champ's Again

BILL Footrick's Harriers again finished the season with the YanCon Championship, but were edged out by Brown in the New England's. Co-Capt. Bob "Digger" Brouillet had a sensational record setting year. Other strong men were Co-Capt. Dave Balch, Bob Wrynn, Ken O'Brien, Dick Blomstrom, and Bob Pendleton. Coach Footrick is to be congratulated on his fine coaching, excellent team, and his third successive YanCon Championship. With a strong frosh team and many returning varsity runners we anticipate another good year coming up.

Booters Break Even

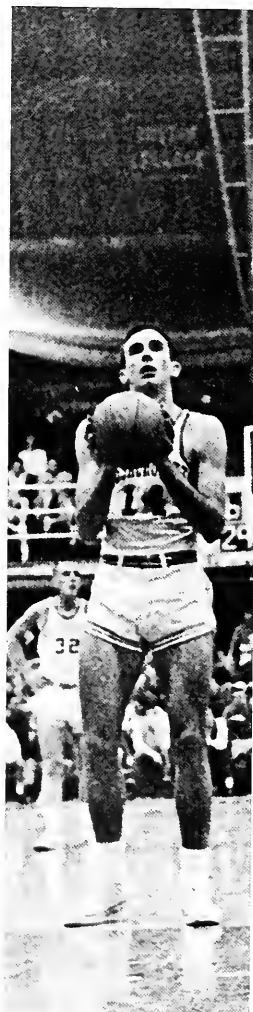

THE UMass soccer team finished with the best season in recent years with a 5-5 record. The season opened against the usual strong Williams team with a loss, 5-1. UMass rebounded from the defeat and upset a favored Trinity team 4-2. After a homecoming defeat, 3-1 by UConn, Dick Leete and Bob Chenery led the Redmen to a 5-2 win over W.P.I. The Briggsmen scored their first shutout with a 4-0 victory over Rhode Island.

The next four games for UMass were "mudders" with the team playing in rain, snow, or both. Coast Guard slipped the lone goal in the UMass net in the fourth quarter, winning 1-0. At Tufts, center forward Pat McDevitt played his finest game of the season along with goalie Dick Phillips, giving UMass the victory 3-1. After an easy 5-0 win at Clark, the booters traveled to West Point and lost 4-2 in a hard fought game. UMass lost their finale at Amherst 4-2.

WINTER SPORTS

*Clarence Hill, soph more sensation,

THE University of Massachusetts basketball squad, following a 1961-1962 season in which they had emerged as Yankee Conference champs, lost ground during the 1962-1963 season when they came up with a 12-12 record. UMass played to a 6-4 record in the Yankee Conference, placing behind the University of Rhode Island.

Looking forward to a good season with a team built around veterans Rodger Twitchell and Pete Bernard, Coach Matt Zunic had his Redmen cagers in training for a month and a half before the season's opener with Stonehill College.

UMass edged a scrappy Stonehill by 47-42 at the Cage, following up with a 52-42 loss at the hands of Boston University at Boston.

Visiting Rutgers University was routed 87-65. In the year's first Yan-Con competition, UConn followed through its old tradition of being unbeatable on its home ground in Storrs and toppled UMass 85-61. Rodger Twitchell tossed in 26 here, 19 in the first half.

Treating Tufts to an early 20-0 lead at Medford and then, supported by sophomore guard Charlie Kingston's 20 points and a record-breaking 24 rebounds by center Charlie O'Rourke, the Redmen handed Tufts a 74-63 loss.

Over Christmas vacation UMass participated in the Trenton Invitational Tournament at Trenton, N. J. The Redmen ran into trouble the first night, bowing to Iona 64-56; they swung back the next evening to grab the tourney's third spat by topping Rider 91-81.

The Redmen got their fifth win of the season at AIC's expense, 71-55, and then came back to break into the Yan-Con win column with an 83-80 squeaker over UNH at New Hampshire.

Despite all-out performances by Rodger Twitchell and Mike Johnson, UMass bowed to Rhode Island 86-80, next losing to the Holy Cross Crusaders by 68-61.

The second Conference win came when the Redmen whipped Vermont 92-57 in the Cage, while the next game was lost to Canisius, 54-52, at the Buffalo War Memorial Auditorium.

Co-Captain Pete Bernard, high off the floor to snare a pass

MASSACHUSETTS picked up an 80-68 decision over Maine at home, six players hitting for double digits, and found Coast Guard good for a 77-64 victory before running into the Providence College Friars at Providence. The Redmen matched P. C. point for point in the first half but finally gave in to an 80-61 loss.

UMass knocked URI from the unbeaten ranks of the Conference standings in a return engagement between the two on the Redmen's home court. Clarence Hill and Rodger Twitchell led the 69-65 dumping on the Rams.

In a second UConn game, the Zunicemen couldn't stem the Huskies, who prevailed 79-66.

"No!

Not Again"

Following the UConn loss, UMass embarked on a disastrous road trip. In a second meeting with Iona, this time at Madison Square Garden, Iona won its second game over the Redmen with a 61-54 score. Vermont avenged an earlier season loss to Massachusetts by winning 81-73. Twitchell poured in 29 points against the Catamounts, but got little help from his teammates.

Northeastern University, NCAA College Division titlist in the northeast area, gave the Redmen their worst beating of the season, 90-61.

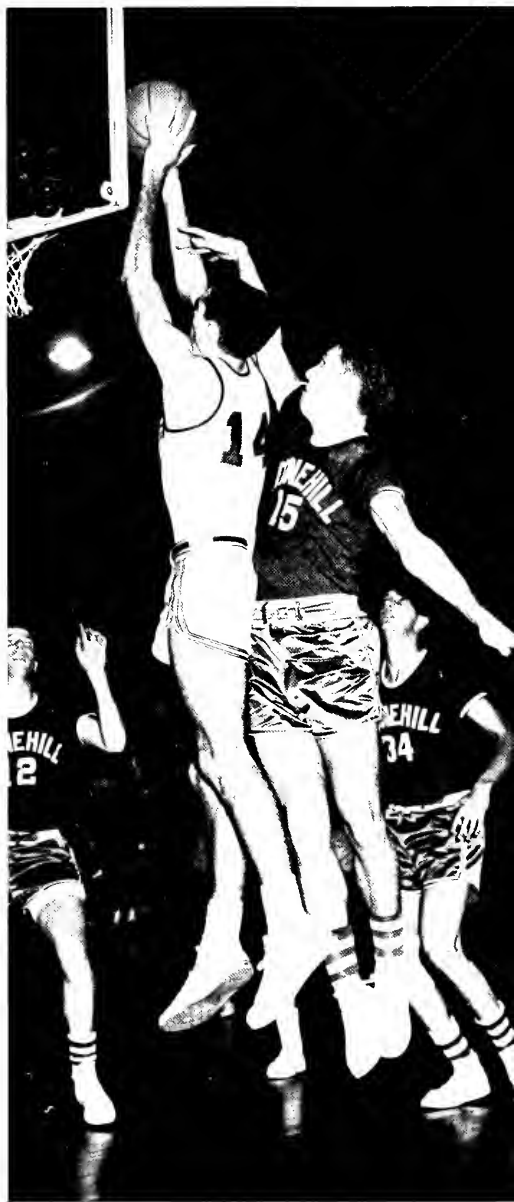

In the last home appearance of the season, UMass pulled the fast break and ran UNH off the court en route to Yan-Con victory number five. Unexpected scoring punch came from sophomore John Reynolds, who gave 26 points to the 93-67 onslaught.

St. John's of N. Y. pinned an 82-73 loss to the Redmen in an away meet before UMass finished the season with a 94-76 win over Maine on the Black Bears' home court.

In the season's closer, Twitchell set two season-high totals: points scored with 33 and field goals made, 14.

Rodger Twitchell finished his second year on the UMass varsity team with a 24 game total of 439 and an average of 18.3 to lead the Redmen in both of these departments. "Twitch" was also the Redmen's most accurate shooter from the floor with his field goal percentage of 50.4.

The Yankee Conference scoring title also went to Twitchell. Against Conference foes he dumped in 226 points for a game average of 22.6.

Twitchell's 1962-63 performance boosted him to the number four spot among the all-time scorers of UMass, won him All-Yankee Conference first team honors for the second year in a row and All New England second team honors, also for the second year in a row.

To the surprise of the campus community, head basketball coach Matt Zunic was dismissed at the close of the season. In his four years at UMass, Zunic compiled a record of 57 wins, 41 losses.

The appreciation of the student body is extended to Zunic, who elevated UMass to major college basketball status and brought to the Redmen a big-name school schedule.

ALTHOUGH only in its second year of competition in the New England Intercollegiate Ski Conference, UMass captured fourth place out of 18 competitors.

Individually UMass did equally as well with Capt. Dick Hurlbut finishing second, with Don Burgess, Tom Clark, Eric Schule, and Norm Carpenter finishing 12th, 13th, 14th and 27th respectively out of over 145 competitors.

UMass copped a fourth in the Brown Invitational Slalom and a third in the Amherst Slalom, where for the first time in 22 years UMass beat the Lord Jeffs.

Coach William MacConnell is to be congratulated for the quality of skiers being turned out under his guidance. Although the losses through graduation of Hurlbut, Schule, and Bowlen will be felt, another excellent season is expected next year.

O'Brien in the 1000

COACH William Footrick's trackmen, backed by Ward, O'Brien and Brouillet, moved into green pastures this season.

Ken O'Brien, the first UMass competitor in the history of the BAA, showed his style with a win in the Bingham 880, while Dick Ward, placing fifth in the 35 pound weight, with a distance of 61'3.5", had the best throw in the nation for a collegian.

UMass trackmen trounced UConn, smashing records in the 35 pound weight, broad jump, low hurdles and two mile.

Losing three heartbreakers to Brown, Northeastern, and Holy Cross, the Redmen broke loose to overpower UNH. O'Brien and Brouillet set records in the 1,000 and the two mile runs, respectively.

The season ended with two spectacular showings. Second to none in ending his collegiate career, Dick Ward stepped forward to take first place in the IC4A's with a toss of 61'9.5" in the 35 pound weight.

Coach Footrick was honored by the IC4A and awarded a medal for his 25 years of devotion to the development of track.

PINNING defeats on Tufts, UConn, and URI, the UMass wrestlers showed vast improvement over last year's one-win season. The record does not show however, the closeness of many matches and the impressive individual records.

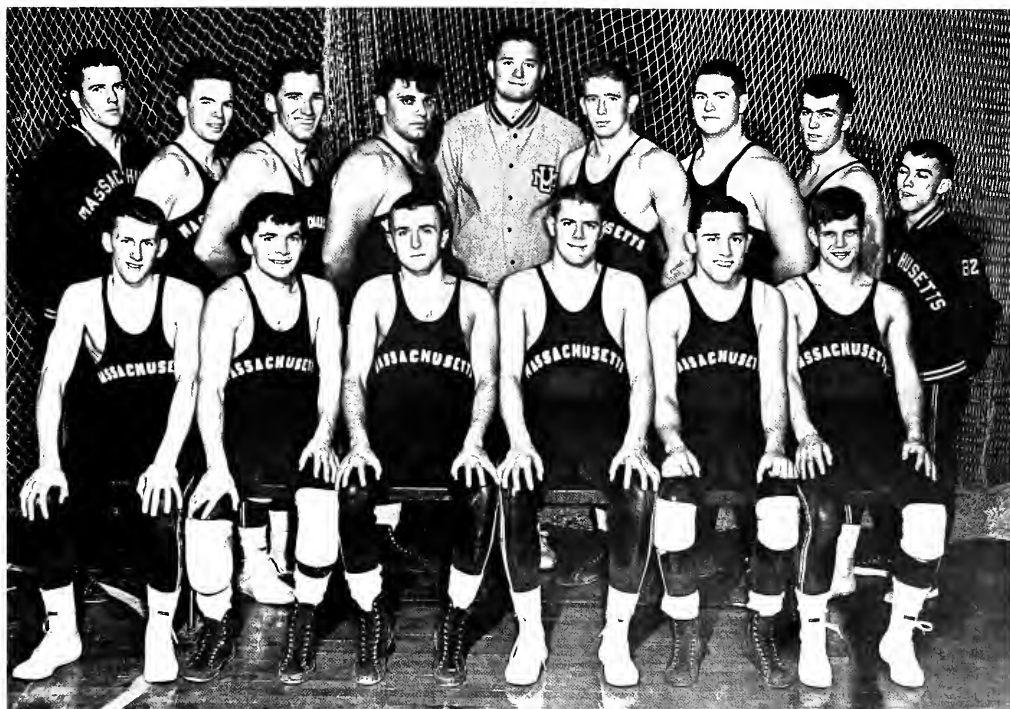

Boris Chevone, in the 123 pound class, captured a fourth in the New England's. During the season Mike Rivers, 130 lb. class, had eight wins, while co-captain Tom Best, in the 147 weight class, had five wins, and Craig DeWallace, 157 lb. class, had six wins.

With the loss of only two seniors and a very promising frosh team—Jesse Brogan, 137 lb. class, and Dave Kelly, 177 lb. class, captured first and fourth places respectively in the Freshmen New England's, UMass is expected to show even greater improvement.

With the added depth of Tom Astaldi and sophomores Stan Brailer and Dave Feindel, the gymnasts fielded a team that was 40 points better than last year's.

Team effort was consistent in all competitions, and the prospects for next year are very encouraging.

The 1964 season will see UMass as a member of the Eastern Gymnastic League, which is composed of the top teams in the East. Coach Kjeldsen is building for big time gymnastics against such teams as Army, Navy, Penn. State, Temple, and Syracuse.

And Records Galore

WITH a record of 5-4, the University of Massachusetts Mermen ended their first winning season in the past eight years. Acclamation goes to a deserving coach, Joe Rogers, who, with diligent effort, has molded this unit into a very fine representative team. Praise also goes to the members of the team who have shattered many records and earned crucial points in this winning season.

Mike Rothschild

Mike Bjørnholm, sophomore star, demonstrated his record-breaking capabilities by setting four records: (1) 50 yd. freestyle at Tufts; (2) 400 yd. medley race at Holy Cross; (3) 50 yd. freestyle at RPI; (4) 100 yd. freestyle at RPI.

MIKE Rothschild, junior star of the UMass swimming team, shattered six records during the past season: (1) 200 yd. freestyle at Tufts; (2) 500 yd. freestyle at Tufts; (3) 400 yd. Medley race at Holy Cross; (4) 200 yd. freestyle at RPI; (5) 500 yd. freestyle at RPI; (6) 100 yd. freestyle at RPI.

Other record breakers included Charlie Monnier and Jim O'Sullivan who broke the 400 yd. medley at Holy Cross. Monnier also broke the 200 yd. breaststroke record at Coast Guard.

Roger's Record Breakers

Bruce Morton, co-captain of the team, broke the 200 yd. individual medley record.

UMass Gunmen On Top

The University of Massachusetts varsity Rifle Team finished the regular season undefeated in Yankee Conference competition. In the NECRL Southern Group, the team shot its way to an imposing 8-1 record. Members of the team include: D. Greene, J. Vermeiren, D. Levine, H. Butterworth, J. Carswell, F. Fluett, L. Thibert, M. Nataupsky, and Captain Roy Fowler (coach).

Ending a 5-5 season, the University of Massachusetts varsity Pistol Team placed second in the New England Air Force Gallery Championship capturing four individual trophies for first place events and one individual trophy for second place events. Firing a score of 1049, the Redmen placed among the top 15 rifle teams in the country at the NRA Intercollegiate Tournament. Members of the team include: (standing) R. Natfield, J. Kelly, G. Newton, D. Naylor (captain), J. Greendale, D. Sullivan, J. Vermerian, and (kneeling) Captain Tom McGinnis (coach). Missing: F. Fluett and R. Newburg.

Pucksters Score 6 - 6 Season

THE Redmen Hockey Team, after winning the opener against MIT, 6-3, went through a six game losing streak in regular games, before winning the last five. UMass suffered at the hands of Pennsylvania, Amherst, Williams, AIC, Colgate, and Norwich, before beating Hamilton in the Christmas Tournament at Brown University. After three more losses to Bowdoin, Brown, and West Point, the team finally caught fire and got into the win column with victories over UConn, MIT, New Hampshire—twice, and Amherst.

New Hampshire was ranked third among New England small colleges; thus the two wins over UNH were no small feat.

The club will be without the services of Captain Gerry Clinton next season but the many sophomores and juniors who were just starting to click at the end of this past season should provide a fine nucleus for next year's pucksters.

THE Little Redmen have always given their opposition a tough struggle and this year was no exception.

The football team, under the coaching of Fred Glatz, and with standouts like Bob Taylor, Milt Morin, and Bob Meers, completed an undefeated season. Connecticut, Manlius, and New Hampshire all fell victim to the Little Redmen.

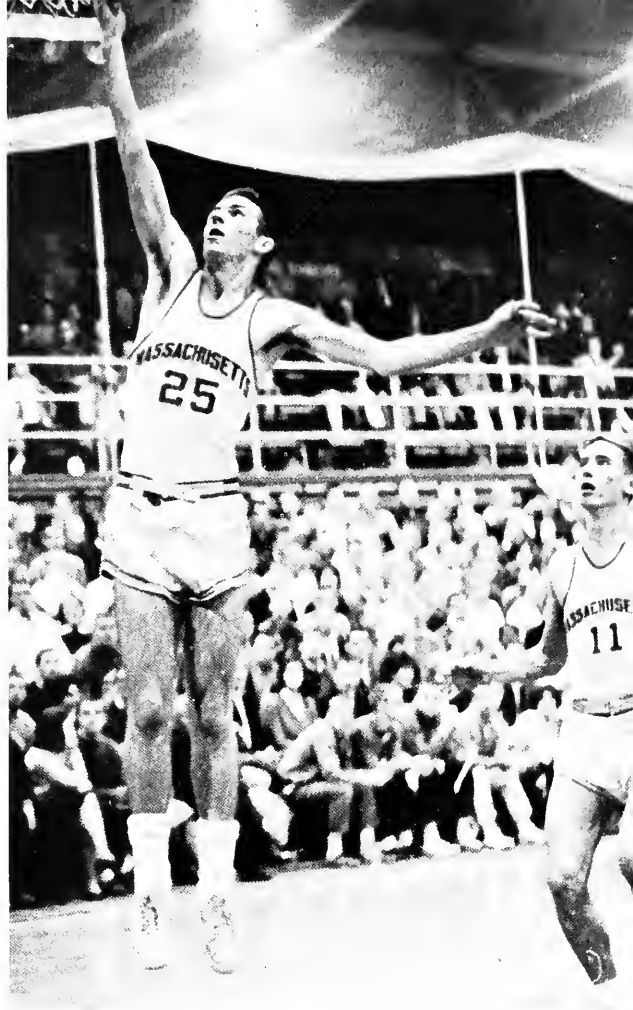

Cobb's cross country team carried the ball from there, ending the season 7-0, defeating powers such as Army and Harvard. Bob Molvar, freshmen standout, placed sixth in the New England's, and thirteenth in the IC4A's.

Soccer did not fair as well, but completed a 4-1-1 season. The team strength is expected to be a boon to the varsity next year.

Jack Leaman's courtmen, with power in Gamble, Edwards, DeLue and Wellson, set an enviable record again this season. The freshmen teams, especially like those of this year, always add strong support and depth to aid our varsity Redmen.

WAA Keeps Coeds In Shape

WOMEN'S Athletic Association is a student run organization which has been set up to offer a variety of sports and recreational activities for every woman on campus. The Association is headed by an executive board, which is made up of officers elected by girls who participate in the various sports. Under this board there is a sub-board which includes representatives from each dormitory and sorority. Through the year there are a total of fourteen activities open to girls. Another feature is Co-Rec night during which the facilities of the Women's Physical Education Building are open to both male and female students of the University.

NAIADS are a synchronized swim club open to all University women which selects its members through annual try-outs. This year's performance, "Waterlog," was led by Carole Marsden and Miss Esther Wallace, Advisor.

Intramural Program Expanded

Kappa Sig vs. Lambda Chi of UNH for the Inter-school Championship

Nice call, Ref.

RECOGNIZED Student Organizations were welcomed into the expanded Intramural Program to compete with the fraternities, dorms and independents.

The Intramural Program, under the direction of Justin L. Cobb, is designed to meet the students' interests in touch football, basketball, softball, tennis, volleyball, wrestling, lacrosse, bowling, and badminton. The goal for each team is the coveted Stephan Davis Trophy awarded annually to the intramural champions.

Another highlight of the program is the inter-school championship between the Campus Champs of UNH and UMass in touch football and basketball. Kappa Sigma, UMass touch football champion, defeated Lambda Chi Alpha of UNH 14-0, regaining the Championship lost last year.

Looking Back With Our Oldest Living Alumnus

OUR oldest living alumnus, Henri D. Haskins, '90, resides quietly in an Amherst nursing home. After graduation from M.A.C. he served for nearly 50 years as a member of the faculty as a laboratory and fertilizer chemist. President of the Association of Official Agricultural Chemists, and a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Haskins wrote scores of bulletins in his field.

When talking about his classmates Haskins said, "We had one boy from Cuba and we had one from Brazil, Castro his name was."

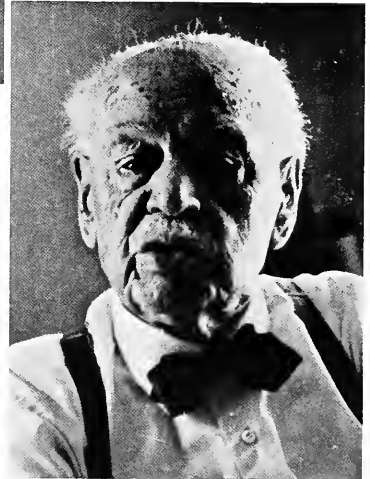

Discussing the present size of the University he said, "Well, it had to grow, of course, and the number of students will be much increased. I think it is a good idea."

Haskins celebrated his 93rd birthday on December 27, 1962. When asked how old he was he replied with a smile, "Over 21."

"Goodell was the president of the University when I was a student. He was a very popular man as was Professor Goessman."

An Old Man Recalls His Youth

FOR all his 93 years, Henri Haskins retains a spryness that hints of youth as reflected in the photo story above. He chuckled occasionally as he reminisced about his college days as a fraternity man (QTV). "I don't imagine they have changed much," he observed.

He talked about the Cane Rush, a mysterious and spontaneous form of steam-letting held over in the Experiment Station. Henri was unsure of the game as he tried to recall from the past. But he assured his interviewers, "It was just good, clean fun."

Lederle Sees Future As One Of Growth

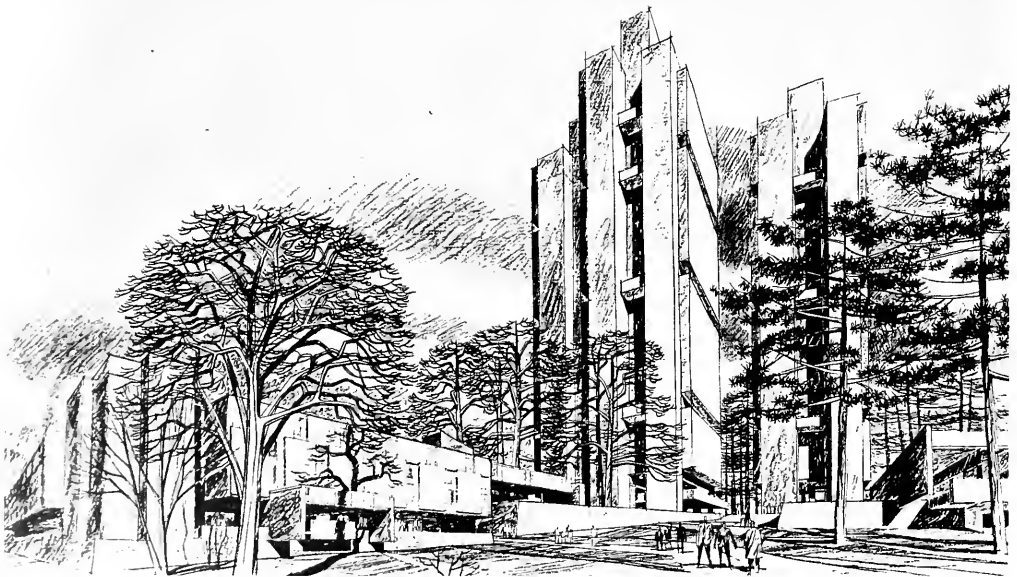

One word may characterize the future of the University of Massachusetts: growth. The critical question is what type of growth this will be. It will be, I feel, a growth in many dimensions.

We will grow in size. Our student body will increase, especially at the graduate and professional levels of study. And our campus will grow correspondingly. Our educational program and offerings will grow in scope and diversity. Our faculty will grow in terms of research productivity and range of talents, while at the same time retaining the necessary basic commitment to effective teaching that is the heart of educational endeavor. Our public service contributions will grow apace with our increasing responsibility as the capstone of the public educational system. We will grow in qualitative terms, for with the growth in diversity of talents and resources it will be possible to build upon our present base of excellence in areas not now open to us.

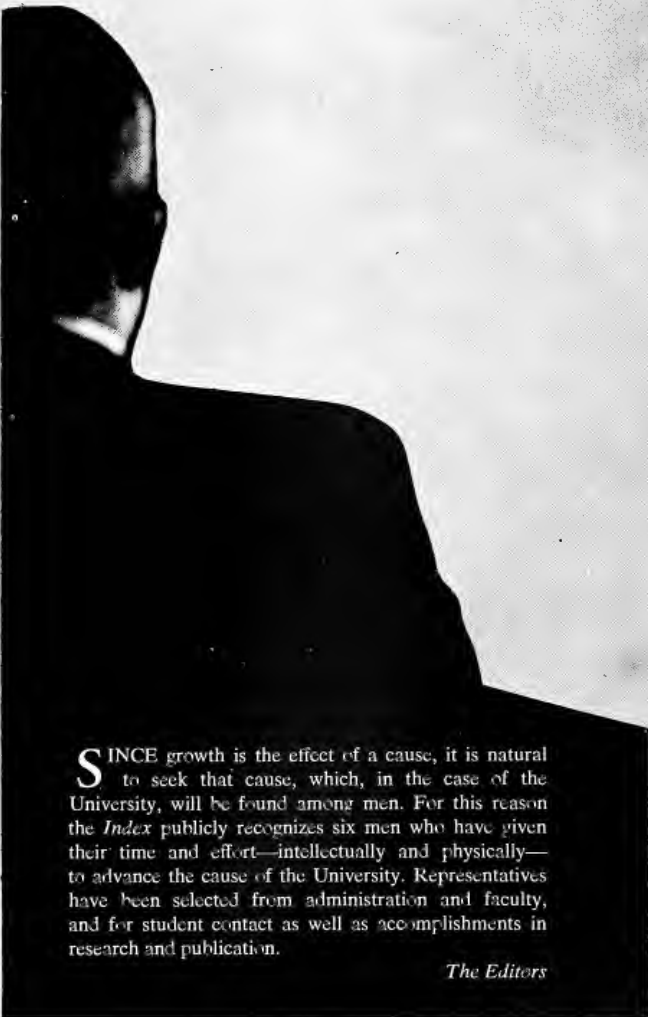

John W. Lederle

The future of the University is exemplified by an architect's drawing of the 22 story dormitory complex to be completed by September, 1965

*Six Men Are Cited

SINCE growth is the effect of a cause, it is natural to seek that cause, which, in the case of the University, will be found among men. For this reason the Index publicly recognizes six men who have given their time and effort—intellectually and physically—to advance the cause of the University. Representatives have been selected from administration and faculty, and for student contact as well as accomplishments in research and publication.

Dean Purvis Leads School Of Education To High Position In It's Field

GUIDING the growth and development of the School of Education has been Dean Albert W. Purvis. Under his guidance, and with the $2.2 million School of Education, the school has gained wide recognition.

Dean Purvis has not confined his activity solely to the Amherst campus as seen in his work for the federal government which established a secondary school for girls in Uganda, Africa.

Although the chief administrator of one of the larger schools in the University community, he is well known to education students who seek his guidance.

*Dr. Greenbaum
Guiding Light Of Honors Council*

A SHINING intellectual beacon on the campus of the University of Massachusetts is Dr. Louis S. Greenbaum.

Since his arrival in 1955, this ebullient educator has poured time and energy into the development of the intellectual atmosphere of the University. From his position in the history department, he has been able to lead the honors program to an established place in the University's curriculum.

Under his direction, Honors Council has channeled upperclassmen in the pursuit of academic problems of personal interest.

Dr. Gage Attends University Health

THE two-year-old University of Massachusetts Infirmary would be little more than a sparkling glass and brick shell without the dedicated work of Dr. Robert W. Gage.

This slim, intense man received his B.S. from the University of Massachusetts in 1938 and went on to Harvard University's Medical School where he earned his M.D.

As director of the University Health Service, his size belies his energy in running the million dollar home of the Health Service with its 88-bed capacity, physiotherapeutic facilities, chemical and bacteriological laboratory, and emergency operating room.

Aside from the Infirmary itself, Dr. Gage is responsible for campus sanitation, health education, and the general firmity of the campus community. He is also a member of the University's Student Personnel Activities Council.

Since the completion of the new Infirmary and the extension of health services, one of Dr. Gage's goals has reached fruition: That students enjoy good health, and get the most out of their investment.

WHEN the telephone rings at the house of Bill Deminoff, University Editor, the voice at the caller's end may just as likely be President Lederle with an important press announcement, as a Collegian reporter who is trying to phrase his way through a ticklish assignment.

If an Index editor cares to discuss his problems and ideas he will probably turn to Bill, the 1952 Index editor. Perhaps an Adelpian would seek advice on a pressing student problem in which case he might turn to Bill Deminoff, also an Adelpian.

Bill, a four-year dean's scholar, graduated from the University magna cum laude in 1952. He received his M.A. in English at Brown University and completed his Ph.D. course work there. He returned here as an instructor in English and in 1959 moved to his post as University Editor where he is responsible for preparing news and publicity releases for radio, TV, and press. He is also editor of the four University catalogs.

DR. EVERETT ANDERSON, who received his B.A. and M.A. from Fisk University, and his Ph.D. from the State University of Iowa, is an expert in the field of electron microscopy. He is presently doing research here at the University under an $82,000 grant issued by the U.S. Public Health Service.

The Electron Microscope, using a principle which is different from the optical microscopes utilized in most laboratory work, can probe effectively at the inner composition of living cells. Aside from his submicroscopic work, Dr. Anderson trains graduate students in the use of the University's newly acquired electron microscope and also instructs them on the fine structure of cells.

Dr. Anderson's ultimate aim is to correlate facts about the composition of cells with the functions such cells perform.

*Kamys: UMass'

IN his second year here at the University, Walter M. Kamys, Assistant Professor of Art, has spawned the beginnings of what will be a top ranking art collection.

This energetic man, an accomplished artist in his own right, was the chief initiator of the Art Acquisition Fund. His personal efforts have resulted in a collection of original works earmarked as a nucleus for the new Art Center designed by the world famed architect, Minoru Yamasaki.

The continuing expansion of the University's art collection, under the direction of Mr. Kamys, is expected to provide a gathering of artistic expression worthy of its proposed new home.

While Outside . . .

THE eyes of the nation and the world focus on the state of Mississippi as rebellion replaces law and order. Bloodshed and violence were a result of the admission of James Meredith, a Negro to the University under Federal court order. The United States government finally won a court case against Governor Ross Barnett and Meredith was admitted to "Ole Miss." The question remains: whether the ultimate tragedy of Americans fearing Americans can be averted in the future.

The world's two superpowers, The United States and Russia confronted each other in perhaps the greatest crisis since World War II. With both countries equally aware that a showdown held the threat of nuclear war, President Kennedy seemed to have won the United States critical objectives in Cuba by holding firm.

In the course of the Cuban crisis the many sided war in Vietnam has become all but forgotten but on its outcome may well depend the ultimate fate of all Southeast Asia . . . whether it will go Communist or free.

While Europe is waiting and holding out the prospect of becoming the world's greatest trading area, President Kennedy is setting the stage for the second half of his term in office by unveiling to Congress and the nation plans for the biggest Federal budget in U.S. history.

Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's biggest job is working on Britain's hopeful entrance into the Common Market. Europe so far has held out the tantalizing prospect of entry.

The New York Times Square has brought attention to a rapidly changing product—The American Newspaper. Closures, showings and mergers are drawing attention to a business beset with problems.

The people of the world were saddened to lose two beloved people, Eleanor Roosevelt and Robert Frost, both of whom were symbols of humanitarianism and humanity.

Delta Mu, 1961

THE Centennial Year has brought activity in many forms to the sisters of Delta Mu of Alpha Chi Omega. The girls have been kept on their toes with a successful first semester rush period, numerous exchange suppers, the building of a prize-winning float, and the many facets of sorority social life. Christmas caroling at Belchertown State Hospital, co-sponsoring a Christmas party for underprivileged children with Beta Kappa Phi, and working together toward the completion of an altruistic project are but a few of Alpha Chi's humanitarian activities. Individuals, such as AXO's class officers, Precisionettes, Musigals, Mortar Board members, thespians, and Scrolls have been prominent in their contributions to campus life.

Supreme among the efforts of the sisters has been in the planning of their new chapter house, to be completed in the fall. It is a material symbol of the growth of the chapter since its entrance on the campus in 1960. With the birth of a new century for the University, Delta Mu of Alpha Chi Omega has matured and taken its place in the line of established University sororities.

WILD parties, quiet moments by the fireplace, strumming of guitars, funny "bits" pulled by the brothers, along with the seriousness of house business and studies all go into the making of a fraternity. At AEPi these, coupled with a desire to participate and excel in the IFC activities, have served to maintain a high degree of all those qualities which bind a house together.

AEPi has again this semester, as well as for the past four, achieved high academic distinction by winning the IFC scholarship trophy. Although scholarship is emphasized, we are by no means a house of "closet cases" (as evidenced greatly by our present senior class). We have taken third place in the homecoming float parade for the past two years and have consistently placed high in IFC intramurals. All of this has culminated in our winning of the third place trophy in overall IFC competition.

Individual brothers in the house belong to the majority of organizations on campus, from Adelpia and Phi Kappa Phi Honor Societies to student publications such as Index, Collegian, and Yahoo; in athletics, AEPi's are on the wrestling, judo and tennis teams.

The brothers in AEPi think for themselves and are not blind conformists. Their constant high level of achievement has certainly attested to this.

GAMMA chapter of Alpha Sigma Phi, the oldest national fraternity on campus, celebrated its fiftieth anniversary this year. Originally Gamma chapter was founded at Amherst College and the charter was transferred to the University in 1913. Alpha Sig is going to celebrate its fiftieth year by tearing down the old wooden house at 394 North Pleasant Street and building a completely new house capable of housing its entire membership. Construction should be completed in the Fall.

Alpha Sig had representatives on the lacrosse, track, tennis and gymnastics teams, and hopes to be represented in the next Olympic Games through the efforts of one of its officers, Bob Jarvis. Jarv has won both the Middle Atlantic States and the National Regatta Championships in sculling and is recognized as a good candidate for the Games. A number of Sigs made the Dean's List this past year and two members were initiated into Tau Beta Pi.

A very lively and active social season was provided with a lot of laughs by such events as theme parties and pinnings. The Sigs took second place with their snow sculpture during Winter Carni this year and their nominee for queen was one of the four finalists. The social season will reach its highpoint at the traditional Black and White Formal in May, where all the brothers will experience their annual pinning.

Gamma, 1913

ALPHA Tau Gamma Fraternity was founded at the University of Massachusetts in 1919. We are the only two year fraternity founded by, and exclusively for Stockbridge School of Agriculture students. We are proud that we have been the closest tie between the two year students and the four year students at the University.

The brothers of A.T.G. have made long strides in the past years. With our membership of only forty we have done fairly well in competition with the larger houses on campus. Even though we didn't win a prize we were very proud of our Statue of Liberty snow sculpture which gained us much recognition in many newspapers.

Socially, the green and gold has shown itself to be a true social fraternity with our frequent parties and exchange suppers with sororities. The highlight of the year was our Pledge Formal held on March 16 at the Chateau Harmony in honor of our hard working pledge class. We had the biggest turnout of Alumni ever seen.

With our Alumni rejuvenated there is much to expect in the years ahead.

THIS year has been another busy year for the Beta Phi's. The Homecoming Float and the United Nations Carnival both were examples which displayed how some of this activity has paid off. One of the most significant accomplishments was the remodeling and the extension of the Goobie Lounge which now seats nearly twice as many people as it did previously. The new hard wood paneling has been the object of many "oohs" and "ahs" around the house.

The social schedule, jammed with exchange suppers and parties increased activity around the house even further. Rushing first semester this year kept the brothers on their toes, and moved all thoughts to the pledge party, House Formal and Mass Grass which all scored successes as usual. The only appropriate adjective to describe the year is "active."

INDEED, one of the outstanding aspects of Iota Gamma Upsilon is its position of being the only local sorority on campus. Having started less than a year ago, the Iota Gams have spent their time becoming acclimated to the Greek system with all its manifold and intricate functions.

One of the first contacts with the University Community as a whole was an Inaugural Tea at which we introduced ourselves formally to the administration and to the student body. We were very pleased at the interest shown by so many.

Next we were faced with Homecoming Weekend. Each night for over a week we enthusiastically worked to finish what seemed to be an impossible task. Yet Friday afternoon the float was done and stood beautifully waiting for the parade. Then the skies opened and a deluge poured down ruining the float and our hopes of entering the parade. And so began and ended our first Homecoming Weekend.

We were also confronted with our first formal rush this year and are extremely pleased and proud of our pledges. After formal rush, several informal parties were held and more new pledges entered under the protection of the holly leaf. The culmination of our first semester dream by our new sorority—pledge formal at Wiggins Tavern climaxed our efforts to welcome our new pledges.

IOTA GAMMA UPSILON

Founded 1962

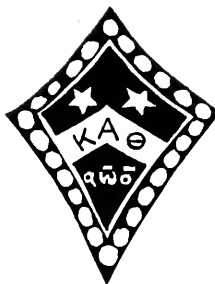

THE primary aims of Kappa Alpha Theta are the moral, social and intellectual development of the individual member and the cultivation of enjoyable and closer friendships among the members as a whole.

The school year 1962-1963 found the fulfillment of Theta's aims achieved but also by means of several innovations introduced during this year.

The new rush program and first semester rush period along with much new rush legislation succeeded in creating an attitude of closer adherence to the rush rules on the part of each one of us, an important moral advancement.

Socially, besides the usual exchange suppers and Christmas party with fraternities, we enjoyed exchange suppers with different sororities and a Halloween party with the two newly founded sororities on campus, thus enabling us to form closer companionships with other members of Pan-Hellenic.

There was much enthusiasm and amusement also in our participation in the first annual Pan-Hellenic-IFC United Nations Carnival. We dressed as African natives for our "Spear the Gourd" game booth, the proceeds of which went to the UN.

Gamma Eta, 1943

Scholastically, in addition to the annual scholarship banquet there was initiated in the house compulsory study hours for the pledges to assure the furthering of the intellectual growth of our new members.

Our attempts to carry out the goals of our sorority were facilitated immensely by the beautiful new addition and complete renovation of our chapter house in the fall.

Whatever different degrees of success that we have individually achieved, we have done for the good of our house. All of us were certainly most successful in forming friendships with each other which will long outlast our years at the University.

Panhellenic -- a year of expansion

A GROUP made up of individuals—individuals representing various groups with diversified aims and representing a central concept, a central idea, and a central purpose—such is the Panhellenic Council.

Every sorority woman is a member of Panhellenic and as such, maintains a double royalty focusing on her own sorority and radiating to the larger system. Two members of each house are elected to meet weekly and to discuss facets of the Greek System as it relates to this campus and to the larger world.

Motions ranging from Freshmen Rush, aid for the Abbey girls, donations to the Art Fund, the acceptance of two new sororities into Panhellenic, and the initiation of a Junior Panhellenic were passed.

The council has worked in closer coordination with IFC and the administration to promote and actualize the long and short range goals of a system that is being challenged by the very atmosphere of modern academic life.

For although all things are created within a pattern . . .
each is unique

Welcome Relief
After Tense Bid

Delta Nu, 1942

DELTA Nu chapter of Kappa Kappa Gamma looks forward to celebrating its twenty-first birthday with a new address on Nutting Avenue. Fall of 1963 will find fifty-four thrilled sisters occupying the colonial style house with dining facilities for eighty.

Kappa happily looks forward to the sisters who are Scrolls, and Revelers, and to its two Mortar Board members. The sisters beam with Sandra Russell, Jean Bruen, Betty Nurmi, and Betsy Robicheau for their national rating as Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. The house is unusually proud of its president Jean Bruen for her senior honors as president of Mortar Board and a "Who's Who."

Kappa enjoyed a wonderful and prosperous rush period during the fall months and proudly presented its twenty-seven new pledges at Pledge Formal at the Wycoff Country Club in March. The wearers of the key will always hold the fond memories that their "gingerbread" house has brought them and look hopefully forward to many more wonderful years of sorority living on Nutting Avenue.

KAPPA Sigma Fraternity was founded at the University of Virginia in 1869. The campus chapter, Gamma Delta, was established in 1904. At present there are 135 chapters throughout the United States and Canada. The Gamma Delta chapter has at the moment seventy-five members, forty of which live in the house. The first local chapter house was located on North Pleasant Street. In 1939, the present building on Butterfield Terrace was financed, designed, and built by the alumni and active members. The house was designed specifically for fraternity living.

The interests of the brothers are quite diversified; an indication of this is the number of different major courses pursued. The Kappa Sigs are active members of many campus societies, clubs, organizations, and committees. They are also represented on all of the athletic teams at the University. This year there are six brothers who are captains of various sports. Always near the top in I.F.C. competition, Kappa Sig finished first in intramural athletics and third in all-around competition last year. The Gamma Delta chapter is usually among the top three fraternities scholastically.

GAMMA chapter, founded here at the University in 1912, is one of 150 active chapters of Lambda Chi Alpha throughout the United States and Canada. The brothers within Gamma Zeta come from all parts of the state and are majoring in many different fields ranging from physical education to engineering. Yet despite diversity in membership, Lambda Chi Alpha has always produced athletic and scholastic leaders, men among men! The school year 1962-63 was no exception: the University of Massachusetts' third All-American is a Lambda Chi. He is joining good company because one of the previous initiates into this select club is also a Lambda Chi. Campus organizations such as the Revelers, the Maroon Key, the Index, and many others have counted among their number many Lambda Chi's. Having just closed the books on fifty years of progress and achievement, Gamma chapter is looking forward to the construction of a new house and the ushering in of a new decade. We look to the future with optimism: Lambda Chi Alpha shall continue to be a leader among men.

ALPHA chapter of Lambda Phi was thrilled this year to watch the national sorority, their former local had founded, become a working institution. The founding of a new colony at Long Beach, California made the national truly spread across the nation. This year the chapter received its first national news magazine, The Open Door, and was happy to finally adopt a national pledge manual and crest.

The sisters were all happy for one of our juniors, Mary Agnes Pelton, who was named as a College Board Member of Mademoiselle magazine. One of our interesting members is Doris Loersser, a sophomore from Germany, who by her very presence has taught the sisters much about another culture. Doris speaks English, German, French, and Russian, and is one of the most enthusiastic members.

We were proud to see our president, Betsy Walker, and Marilyn Whitney elected to the Phi Kappa Phi honor society. Along with the rest of the girls, they helped raise the house average so that Lambda Phi again was awarded the Panhellenic Scholarship Tray. Delores Mathews represented the University very well on her Senate trip to Washington, D. C. Delly was also elected to Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

THE National Fraternity PMD was established on this campus in 1953 when a local fraternity ZZZ was incorporated into the national constitution.

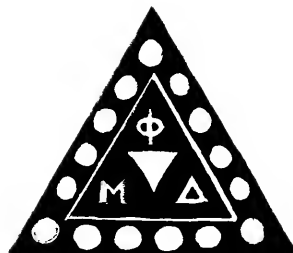

In the ensuing years the local chapter has progressed to such an extent that plans for a new house have been formulated. The only regret that the brothers have is the loss of the present location but we feel that this is a necessity in keeping with the growing fraternity system.

PMD is proud of its brotherhood, both past and present, for the merits they have bestowed upon themselves and their fraternity.

Phi Mu's presently hold positions in several campus activities . . . from Chorale and Statesmen to the Student Senate.

Sports-wise PMD has not lagged behind. Several of the brothers are participating in varsity sports, and in IFC competition we have given a good account of ourselves.

The social calendar for the year included the regular Saturday night parties as well as Pledge Formal and the annual Christmas party. The spring semester would not be complete without our annual Pago-Pago weekend.

The sisters were kept busy with teas to welcome Mrs. Cheyne to the University and Mrs. Dix, our Grand Vice President. We also enjoyed many sorority and fraternity exchange suppers.

A highlight of the fall semester was our float, Noah's Ark, taking first place on Homecoming Weekend, which was followed second semester by our prize-winning snow sculpture.

Pi Beta Phi sponsors several altruistic services. The Pi Phi's have adopted a foster child who lives in Greece. Pi Phi also founded a Settlement School in 1912, a philanthropic project, which offers the opportunity of education and employment to the people of Gatlinburg, Tennessee.

THIS past year found the Phi Sigs actively at work in improving the recreational facilities of the house. An additional living room was constructed and more than $1500 worth of furniture was purchased. To fill in the social calendar on week-ends when no official parties were scheduled, a juke box was installed.

In addition to the interior remodeling of the house, the brothers set out to demonstrate that a fraternity can be dedicated to community work as well as campus life. As a result of this effort, the chapter won a prize of $124 in the "Lively Ones Contest" sponsored by the Ford Motor Company. The prize was awarded in recognition of the public service the brotherhood performs each year by holding a Christmas party for the children of the Brightside School in Springfield. A large portion of the prize money was donated toward the purchase of Christmas presents for the Brightside children.

Despite the various house projects, academic work was not neglected by the brothers. In fact, the House gained a high IFC rating in scholastic competition. Moreover, a sizeable portion of the brotherhood belongs to such honor fraternities as Phi Eta Sigma, Phi Kappa Phi, and Alpha Zeta.

PHI Sigma Kappa is celebrating its nintieth anniversary this year. It was in 1873 that Alpha Chapter was founded in the old North College building and a plaque on the facade of Machmer now commemorates this founding. In 1914 the present ivy-covered chapter house was built and this year the house was completely renovated.

Some of the interests of Phi Sig brothers are shown in their record of campus activities. This year the fraternity boasted members of Men's Judiciary, Senate, Campus Chest and Winter Carnival, as well as officers of Revelers and IFC. The fraternity was also represented in Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges. The house has brothers playing on the football, hockey, track, golf and baseball teams.

The social program of the house is again one of the best with the season formals and other special events, such as Mili Brawl and Mass Grass highlighting the year's activities.

QTV is the oldest Latin local fraternity in the country, founded on this campus on May 12, 1869, just two years after Massachusetts Agricultural College opened its doors. QTV is also the first fraternity to be established on this campus. A plaque on South College commemorates its founding.

The most outstanding attribute QTV has is its diversity of personalities and interests among the brethren, while still maintaining a close feeling of brotherhood.

QTV is represented in almost every phase of campus life. We have two class presidents, members of Adelphia, Maroon Key, Revelers, Student Senate and SUG Board. Athletically, we are represented on varsity hockey, lacrosse, track, and cross country teams.

Many improvements concerning the structure of the house itself have been made recently. These improvements include a remodeling of the cellar and dining area. All of the projects were undertaken by the brothers themselves.

Add all of these things together: the heritage and the tradition of the house, the diversity of the brethren, and you have QTV, a closely knit group of men living together in the spirit of fraternal brotherhood.

THE Massachusetts Kappa chapter of Sigma Alpha Epsilon has enjoyed another banner year on Sunset Avenue. On the sports scene, Sigma Alpha Epsilon was honored for the third consecutive year to have the varsity football co-captains. We are also proud of the fact that fifteen of the brothers participated on the successful Redman football team. The brothers of SAE house also have made their presence felt by filling many worthy positions in various campus activities.

Socially, the purple and gold takes a back seat to no one. This is evidenced by our weekly house parties, numerous exchange suppers, our initiation banquet and our traditional formal weekend which includes the annual and widely acclaimed KNURD. Although active socially and in extra-curricular activities, the SAE's have always maintained a high scholastic standing.

Substantial progress has been made this year with the plans for our new addition, which all of the brothers are anxiously awaiting.

Our house was honored for the second year with the presence of our amiable housemother, Mrs. Eva Châtel, as well as the culinary benefits of our cook, Mrs. Francis Dyzanski. In all 1962-1963 was a most successful year for the house of Champions and we look forward to many more happy and productive years at the University of Massachusetts.

IFC Re-Evaluates; Okays Experiment

THE growing pains of the University have been felt in many areas, one of which is the fraternity system. The year 1962-1963 marked the beginning of a serious re-evaluation of the fraternity system by the Interfraternity Council and its member parts.

Experimentation is the only valid test of a new idea, and thus the IFC began the year with first semester rushing abandoning the former February recruitment of Freshmen. This was also a year which saw a relaxation of the town's zoning laws, and a subsequent fervor among the Greeks for embarking upon extensive building programs.

IFC's primary function is the maintenance of sound interfraternity competition and cooperation. The fraternities compete with each other in a variety of fields, e.g., scholarship, athletics, snow sculptures, float parade. The winning houses in each competition are awarded points, and the house receiving the highest total number of points at the end of the year is awarded the coveted IFC Trophy. The fraternity year is culminated by the annual Greek Week held in April. The week is filled with fraternity and sorority events, including the chariot races and Greek Ball.

In addition to activities sponsored by IFC, all of the fraternities conduct other note-worthy projects; among these are the annual house Christmas parties, usually given for underprivileged children. The houses also give active support to the Campus Chest Drive, the annual Blood Drive, and other favorite charities.

SIGMA Delta Tau has been a part of the UMass campus for one fifth of the past one hundred years. In that time it has been an organization devoted to the ideals of unity through variety.

The Sig Delts contribute to every phase of college life. Major fields of study range from recreational leadership to microbiology and the sisters show an active interest and participation in campus affairs. We have also undertaken a variety of philanthropic projects in order to share the Greek spirit with others less fortunate than ourselves.

This past year has been an especially rewarding one because of our twenty-eight new pledges, and the continuance of our competitive and congenial spirit as witnessed by our prize winning snow sculpture, high academic standing and full calendar of social events with fraternities and other sororities.

The sisterhood is a complexity of individuals from many different backgrounds, contributing their diversified interests and abilities to Sigma Delta Tau, making it an integral part of their college education.

A large, white, three-story house with shutters on Allen St. is the Beta Eta chapter home of the sisters of Sigma Kappa. Housing facilities for thirty members are provided at the chapter house. This year all the sisters are able to dine at the house for the first time because of our new eating accommodations.

Sigma Kappa has many outstanding campus leaders in its sisterhood. Beta Eta members are recognized in such organizations as Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges, Revelers, Scrolls, Mortar Board, Phi Kappa Phi, Honors Colloquia, Niaids, Precisionettes, and Student Senate.

This year was filled with fun and excitement mixed with academic duties. The sisters were in a tizzy going to exchanges, building a Homecoming Float and Winter Carnival snow sculpture, participating in Pan Hellenic Sing and Declamation, and finally rushing.

The eighty-six members of Sigma Kappa—fifty-six sisters and twenty-six new pledges will continue to partake in campus organizations, Greek functions, and house activities, still maintaining our motto of living "One heart, one way."

SIGMA PHI EPSILON

WITH the advent of the centennial year Sigma Phi Epsilon in its fifty-first year on the campus is continuing the high spirits and achievements that it has been noted for in past years. This year's edition of Sig Ep ushered in the new year by having a reception for our new housemother Mrs. Palmer, whom we are very happy to have with us. Through her guidance we have succeeded in showing our spirit in competing for the coveted IFC cup by cropping first in our league in football and a third place in the Float Parade. Then our basketball team proved its worth in winning all its games in a very successful season.

Of the many social events enjoyed during the year, truly the Christmas party for the retarded patients of Northampton State Hospital is a most enjoyable and rewarding one. Other high points of Sig Ep life include the Winter Carnival, Homecoming, Greek Week, and last but not least is Sweetheart Ball.

On campus Sig Eps are well represented in such organizations as Maroon Keys, Student Senate, Index Staff, Class Officers, Executive boards, religious organizations and various clubs. With such a background to rely on, Sig Eps look forward to many productive years to come.

IN May, 1962 twenty-two girls were pledged as the first chapter members of the Massachusetts colony of Sigma Sigma Sigma. This sorority was founded at the State Normal School of Farmville, Virginia (now Longwood College) on April 20, 1898. It now has sixty-two active chapters and three new colonies soon to become chapters.

September saw the first real beginning of the "Tri Sigs" with a successful rush. In such a short time of existence the Tri Sigs have reaped many gratifying results from their hard work and spirited participation in campus activities. The sisters enjoyed a year of fun and excitement. Exchange supper parties, building a float for Homecoming (which was just about washed away in the rain storm), and a first place in the Winter Carni snow sculptures highlighted the year's events. However, the biggest event was on the Weekend of March 1-3 when the pledges finally became sisters and the colony was installed as Gamma Kappa chapter of Sigma Sigma Sigma, a national social sorority. After the excitement of all this, the spirited sisters participated in the annual Panhellenic Sing and Dramatization. At the same time we are very proud of the scholastic achievements of the girls and of our Lambda Delta member. Many new adventures await these pioneering girls. Most of them will be moving into the lovely McKune house in September.

THIS has been a banner year in TEP's history with the completion of the long awaited new fraternity house. The entire brotherhood, including many of the newly initiated freshmen, are now living together in the house which has capacity for sixty-eight brothers. Thanks to financial backing from TEP alumni and co-operation from the University administration, the TEP brothers were able to move into their new home before the start of November. In allowing freshmen to live in the chapter house, TEP has set a precedent for UMass fraternities.

TEP has been successful in IFC competition in recent years and has had winning seasons in both football and basketball this year. In the spring TEP hopes to defend its softball championship and to improve on its third place in the IFC sing. Individually, TEP brothers are participating in many campus activities: Maroon Key, Revelers, and cheerleading as well as heading important committees for Winter Carnival and Greek Week. Teppers have also been active in athletics with brothers competing in football, baseball, track, hockey, gymnastics, and lacrosse.

TAU Kappa Epsilon—"Home of Champions"—adds another well rounded year to its history. This past year, Tekes have taken part in many different campus activities. Having ended last year with our traditional first place in the IFC Sing with a Russian Marching song, we then started the new year by winning the Homecoming Float Parade with our unique and colorful "champagne bottle and glass" float. This fine start has been continued as Teke accumulated additional I.F.C. points by finishing third in the snow sculpturing contest. In athletic competition our teams in football, basketball, and hockey have compiled very respectable records. Teke's activities of course, are not limited to just Greek affairs; we have members participating in almost all campus activities. Teke is also proud of its new housemother. Since the Brotherhood has outgrown our present house, plans are currently underway for a new Teke house. Altogether—and together—Teke has enjoyed a very successful year.

During its fifty-two years on campus Theta Chapter of Theta Chi has always been active not only among the Greeks but also in athletics and other extracurricular activities. This year Theta Chi was represented in almost every varsity sport from football to gymnastics and its members were active in Maroon Key, Adelphia, Men's Judiciary, and other campus activities. The brothers remember their past achievements and are constantly adding new ones to the list.

FOUNDED in November, 1961 with the idea of originality in mind, Zeta Nu has been striving to provide the most dynamic fraternal organization on campus. Its membership is not one of few interests, but one of wide diversification. Zeta Nu has joined the ranks of campus leaders by its representation on Class Executive Councils and with brothers in other positions, namely Dave Burnett, President of Phi Eta Sigma, and Alton Brann, President of Class of '65. Also, we are proud to have the University's symbol of school spirit—Metawampe, who is actually Zeta Nu's Robert Small.

With the recent acquisition of our house, formerly the Mt. Pleasant Inn, the brotherhood has begun to live in a close-knit fraternal group, managing to carry on an active social calendar, while also maintaining active interest in sports and scholastics. The inception of formal rushing for Zeta Nu began this fall with the acceptance of 15 pledges, raising the total membership to 53.

Since its founding on this campus less than two years ago, Zeta Nu has reason to be proud of its existence and accomplishments. Zeta Nu was founded on high ideals and in the future will strive even harder to carry on these ideals.

FOR 100 years the University of Massachusetts has been functioning as an institution of higher learning. To commemorate these 100 years, a Student Centennial Committee was founded in October, 1962, under the direction of John Gounaris '63.

John is actively supported by five committee chairmen: Betsy Robicheau, head of the UMass-B.C. Project, a joint program to compare and coordinate both institutions' centennial celebrations; Kim Wallace, head of Student Publicity; Bill Smidt and Carol Hajjar, heads of the Float Parade; Linda Lederman, head of the IFC-Panhellenic Centennial Book which is an attempt on the part of the Greek system to inform the public of its history and purpose; and Howard Wainstein, head of the Centennial Concert.

Senate Legislates

THE legislative body of the student government at the University of Massachusetts, the Student Senate, this year has facilitated absentee voting on campus, sent the Redman Marching Band and Precisionettes to Villanova, set up Area Judiciary, established late breakfast at the Dining Commons, set up and financed inter-dormitory phones, defeated the "cume" bill and established "When Twilight Shadows Deepen" as the University Alma Mater. The Student Senate also loaned money to the Flying Club to purchase a new plane, and donated $2000 to the Campus Coordinating Committee to aid the girls of Abbey.

Successful Year

Membership is open to any undergraduate in good standing elected from residences in the fall election. The total number of senators at present is 48, but is ever increasing to give proper representation to the growing student body.

Much of the work of the Student Senate is done in small committees of which any student may become a member. There are nine committees, including: Curriculum, Finance, Activities, Public Relations, Budgets, Services, Elections, Men's Affairs and Women's Affairs. It is in these various committees that programs and policies are examined and worked out thoroughly before being presented to the Senate.

WHEN the freshmen class arrived on campus last fall, everyone noticed the enthusiasm and great spirit it had. The class went on to prove that their spirit was a lasting one. Many new ideas and even some old traditions were brought back. Cheerleaders were chosen to keep spirit alive at the Freshmen games. This had never been attempted before, but the class of '66 proved that it could be done.

The traditional rope pull which has not been held in recent years was also brought back. Of course, the frosh emerged victorious! An annual Christmas event, the Carol Sing, was held around the Christmas tree with President, Bernie Dallas leading the carolers.

A toboggan chute for Winter Carnival was the big class project. Competition between the sororities and fraternities proved to be the highlight of the run.

WHEN the frolicking freshmen become sober sophomores, a new aura of maturity pervaded the campus. Sixteen-hundred students, led by Bob O'Leary, Ann Williams, and Penny Kone, united in a common cause by the pleasing aroma of pot roast and whipped potatoes emanating from the Student Union prior to Soph Banquet.

Week after week those in the Council Chambers came to the aid of O'Leary in planning activities for the diversion of those upper-class Sophs who might spare a tuppence after a fortnight of hectic University life.

The results were noticed. Soph-Frosh Night was better attended and netted greater profits than in years past. A wonderful "Evening in Camelot" . . .

Some aid to the freshmen in Freshman Forums . . . And a little competition in the Soph-Frosh Ropepull . . . A scholarship to a deserving student . . . And, as a finale, a Spring celebration.

TO celebrate Centennial Year the Class of 1964 presented "These Wonderful Years," Winter Carnival, 1963. The chairmen and many members of the committees were chosen from the Junior Executive Council, a body of students who have contributed largely to the success of the Class and other organizations.

The Council was responsible for several other class activities. As juniors they now wear the 1964 ring, representing the first class of a second hundred years.

General Court Supplemented By Newly Formed Area Judiciary

Women's Judiciary: J. Reimer, M. Walter, B. Viera, Chief Justice; B. Lavalette, L. Fisher.

WOMEN'S and Men's Judiciary combine to form the General Court which deals with cases concerning the Constitution of the Student Senate. Women's Judiciary handles disciplinary cases which do not fall under the jurisdiction of the dormitory councils. This body is composed of five members: two Seniors, two Juniors, and one Sophomore—who are elected by the entire body of University women. This method of electing their judicial members is a privilege to the women. The Chief Justice and the clerk are chosen by the Judiciary members themselves.

Men's Judiciary is composed of seven men: three seniors, three juniors, and one sophomore who handle disciplinary cases with the exception of academic honesty and dormitory cases. The members are chosen by the judiciary body itself and members of the Student Senate, under the direction of the Men's Affairs Committee of the Senate. Most of the cases handled by this board are disciplinary, but in conjunction with Women's Judiciary they have the power to pass on acts voted by the Senate.

A new system, the Area Judiciary, has been developed because of the increasing size of the student body. This Area Judiciary increases the number of justices by having associate justices—one in each of the men's dormitories—presided over by a member of Men's Judiciary. It handles minor offenses; more serious cases are referred to Men's Judiciary.

FUNCTIONING on the premise that the Student Union is a program as well as a building, the Student Union Governing Board works to successfully administer its policies. The Board, made up of representatives of the student body, faculty, administration, and alumni, formulates policy for use of all student union facilities. This year they have added bicycle racks to the union, undertaken identification checks at the dances, and made possible eating in the lodge area.

S.U.G. Board is responsible, under the President and the Board of Trustees, for implementing their policies. Their joint aim is to provide a well-balanced program of social, cultural and educational activities, within Student Union facilities and for the students and entire campus community.

STUDENT, faculty, and administrative representatives make up the Recognized Student Organizations Committee. R.S.O. is an advisory committee to the President of the University on all organized and continuing extra-curricula activities of students requiring a charter, organizational, or financial sanction by the Student Senate, and approved by the President.

The purpose of R.S.O. Committee is to develop policies and procedures for standard financial reporting of activities, for the organization of activities and for the continuing operations of such activities. In September of each year an annual report and roster of such activities is submitted to the President.

Collegian Delivers Extra,

IN an effort to live up to its social responsibility, The Massachusetts Collegian achieved considerable status when an extra two-page sheet appeared before noon of the day following the Abigail Adams blaze. Also included in that issue were bulletin summaries of the precarious Cuban situation.

Beyond rapid spot news coverage, the Collegian, in an attempt to add depth to its scope, subscribed to a national press wire service on an experimental basis. It was the intent of the editors that this service would provide coverage of the academic world.

Editorially the paper reflected student opinion through several polls aimed at campus and national issues. Included were library policies, and a poll of students and faculty concerning the administrations actions on Cuba.

The Collegian is completely student operated, and is published with student funds. The editors receive help from their faculty advisor, Mr. Albert Madeira, and technical advisor, Mr. Marc Ratner. Policy decisions are determined by the Executive Board made up of the editors of the six departments and the editor-in-chief in conjunction with the publishing board consisting of representatives of the Senate, R.S.O., and alumni.

Campus And World News*

WMUA, student operated and student supported, is known for its high quality and varied broadcasting schedule. Excellent coverage is given to major news events of the day as evidenced by the station's fine work during the Cuban crisis. WMUA also aided the girls who had been left homeless by the fire in the Abigail Adams House by broadcasting appeals and collecting clothing.

Many new programs were added to WMUA's schedule this year. Among them were a review of various sporting events, Impulse, a public information program covering a variety of topics, and a program offering discussion of classical literature. As always, classical music afforded many students pleasure and relaxation during the final period. WMUA continues to serve the campus community as it imparts informative, educational, and cultural knowledge for the benefit of its growing listening audience.

Centennial Index

Dares To Be Different

UMASS is a continuously growing university. Each year we find new buildings, new clubs, new activities and new students on campus. Along with the new, the old has been preserved. The function of the Index is to give a complete and accurate view of the happenings—innovations and traditions—at UMass during the 1962-63 school year.

The Index is not merely a picture book, although photographs tell a good deal of the story. It is a record of both the regular workings within the intricate network that makes up the university and the highlights which characterize this Centennial year. It is the hope of the editors and staff that this year's Index will help to keep alive the memories.

Literary Magazine Changes Name To Caesura

Richard Towers, Editor-in-chief

Members of Caesura's Selection Board read material submitted for next issue

CAESURA, the newly renamed literary magazine of the University, aims to stimulate creative thought and its appreciation among the student body, and to provide a medium for artistic expression worthy of publication. Variety in the areas of art, poetry and prose is the key-note for material selection.

This year's issues contained among the contributions a poetry selection by Robin Skelton, on leave from Manchester University, England, as resident poet and Centennial Lecturer in English Literature on this campus.

Caesura is published three times a year by the undergraduate body of the university, and is edited by undergraduate and graduate students.

Yahoo Satirizes Campus Life

ORIGINALLY a creature of somewhat dubious reputation, the Yahoo, a parody on the human race, was created by Jonathan Swift with the intention of exposing society's ills in order that they might be improved upon or eliminated. The present Yahoo carries on the tradition of its ancestor with its selection of mankind, more especially, life of the campus, as its comical victim.

The University Yahoo, humor magazine of the campus, is published tri-annually during the academic year. Material for the publication consists mainly of student contributions, thus giving University undergraduates a chance to exhibit their comic talent.

THE purpose of the Engineering Journal is to keep up with the scientific world, with emphasis on the campus.

The regular features of the publication include: the Journal Queen, a faculty sketch, an alumni profile, a main section on a local or national scientific aspect, and scientific developments. The magazine, with a circulation of 1600, is distributed to all Engineering, Math, and Physical Science majors.

Handbook Honors Centennial Traditions

CONTAINING student and administrative information, the Handbook is the official UMass directory. A ready reference for student rules and regulations, campus activities, academic calendar, and university organizations, the Handbook in its present form reflects the efforts of a long history of changes and improvements in design.

The 1962-63 Handbook has been revised with efficiency of purpose in view. More compact in design, and yet broader in scope, this publication alone serves as the "campus bible" of everyone at the university. In addition to serving as an orientation manual for the freshman, who receive their copies before entering in the fall, its aim is to provide for all students' answers to most questions concerning names, places, and procedures.

In keeping with the spirit of the Centennial year, the 1962-63 Handbook highlighted the traditions and rules of the past century.

HONORARIES

Adelphia Sponsors Leadership Program

AS the first Adelphia chosen under an average requirement, the 1963 Adelphians upheld well their tradition of service to the University. Aside from the usual program of frosh talks, High School Honor Students' Day, football rallies, and dances, the Senior Men's Honor Society promoted the Men's Interdorm Council, aided Campus Varieties to go on, and began a slide program aimed at high school students to acquaint them with the University.

The Student Leadership Program highlighted the Adelphian year in an effort to channel the leadership potential of qualified freshmen and sophomores to needed student areas.

Frequently called upon by the administration to present student views on campus problems, the members of the honor society are necessarily chosen for dedication and service to the University. Further qualifications are high scholastic achievement (members are chosen from the upper third of their class), and proven leadership ability.

IN keeping with its traditional charge "to promote college loyalty, to advance the spirit of service and fellowship among University women, to promote and maintain a high standard of scholarship, to recognize and encourage leadership, and to stimulate and develop a finer type of college woman," Mortar Board, the national senior women's honor society, engaged in campus publication.

Into imperishable print went Co-Etiquette, a guide for freshmen women; Mortar Board Comments, a weekly Collegian column on timely campus problems; and A Guide to Graduate Study to interest junior women in graduate work.

Members also sponsored a Centennial Calendar sale to raise scholarship money, and assisted Adelphia at rally dances, acted as hostesses for the Opening Centennial Convocation, Legislators' Day, and High School Honors Day.

Mortar Boards are selected from the junior class on the basis of high scholarship, faithful service to the University and its standards, and outstanding leadership in all aspects of campus and community life. Isogon, founded on this campus in 1940, was installed the local chapter of Mortar Board in 1955.

Leadership

SROLLS is the honorary organization which gives recognition to women of leadership and scholarship in the Sophomore class. The Scrolls strive to uphold and maintain the standards of high scholarship, friendliness, and cooperation among the students on this campus. The group cooperates with the Maroon Key in coordinating activities during freshman orientation, ushering at various events, and sponsoring scholarship-raising projects.

Sophomore girls are selected by the incumbents from a group elected by all freshmen women. They are tapped in the spring of their freshman year at the Student Leaders Convocation. The selection is based on scholarship, leadership, fellowship, and an underlying enthusiasm to work towards fulfilling these standards which uphold the prestige of the group.

MAROON KEY, the Sophomore men's honorary society, was originally formed to act as a host to visiting athletic teams. Since then, it has expanded its activities to include Freshmen orientation and assistance at rallies, dances, and other programs which are designed to strengthen student life. In addition, Keys also sponsor a scholarship program. Keys are chosen for their qualities of leadership, scholarship, and good character.

This year the group donated "Grey Sky," a painting by Robert Mallory, to the University's Art Acquisition Fund.

OFF" Campus Varieties, the highlight for the Revelers this year, was an original musical written, acted, and produced by University students. Because of administrative barriers, it became necessary for the Revelers to present Campus Varieties at Amherst Regional High School rather than in Bowker Auditorium, thereby assuring the continuation of this campus tradition.

Another "first" this year for Revelers was the presentation of the Freshman Ball in September, thus introducing the frosh to an important aspect of campus life.

Traditional Reveler events included Activities Night during which time the freshmen could meet and choose organizations they would like to join; assisting Adelpia with rallies and the float parade; ushering at convocations; and otherwise extending their aid to the campus whenever needed.

Revelers is an upperclass honorary society whose main purpose is to stimulate and encourage freshmen interest, spirit, participation, and leadership in all campus activities. Tapped at Student Leaders Night, Revelers frequently work in conjunction with the Freshman Class Officers to provide freshmen with various forms of recreation and entertainment throughout the year.

Features Of Concert Band

APPROXIMATELY fifty musicians are members of the University of Massachusetts concert band. Formerly under the direction of Professor Joseph Contino, on sabbatical, 1962-63, the band is efficiently managed by Ed Broderick, general manager, and Harrison Smiley, business manager. The University students presented a Spring concert in March, directed by visiting conductor, Israel Copmar of the Hart School of Music. A Pops concert on the Student Union terrace highlighted the group's successful season.

Operetta Guild

“COLORFUL and delightful” were the terms used to describe the Guild’s fall production of “Guys and Dolls.” Under the direction of Dr. Doric Alviani, this successful play opened the way for another production, “The Three-penny Opera,” which was a Four College co-operative venture.

Modern operettas and musical comedies, key notes of the Guild, offer students interested in acting, singing or the techniques of production an outlet for their talents.

DIRECTED by Dr. John R. King, the University of Massachusetts Chorale dedicates itself to the performance and appreciation of fine choral music. A group of sixty-five, the Chorale is representative of those university students and members of the community who show exceptional talent and sincere interest in choral singing. Through an annual Christmas concert, a spring tour of Massachusetts, and other performances throughout the year, the Chorale offers opportunities for student conductors, accompanists, and soloists to benefit from fine chorale arrangements.

University Theatre Well Acclaimed In First Year

OEDIPUS REX," the first production of the University Theatre at the University was an overwhelming success. The production was the climax of a week-long series of events, which included an exhibition of Lee Simonson's theatrical art and a lecture of the Myth and Ritual Theory of the Beginning of Tragedy by Prof. Herbert Weisinger of Michigan State University. In keeping with the spirit of the Sophoclean tragedy, the Theatre group used the full face masks and costumes, first used in the Canadian Stratford Shakespeare Festival production of the same play in 1955.

Since this first success the Theatre has gone on to produce "Tartuffe" by Moliere, "Androcles and the Lion" by Shaw, and "Murder in the Cathedral" by Eliot. Under the direction of Prof. Orville K. Larson of the speech department, the goal of the Theatre is to produce 16 to 20 plays over a period of four years.

Roister Doister Officers: J. Noren, S. Ferrini,
D. Manley, G. Bergen, President.

The selection of plays is taken from all the great periods of history in the theatre in order to let students who encounter these plays in literature see what they are like when acted out.

This year, Roister Doisters, bringing with them fifty-two years of theatre, production tradition, worked with University Theatre, in its productions. Roister Doisters is the oldest student theatrical organization on campus.

Campus Varieties Goes Off

THE traditional "CAMPUS VARIETIES" at UMass was pulled "off campus" by Revelers due to insurmountable technical difficulties. "C.V." is an original musical comedy written, directed, produced and performed by student amateurs and is unique in that it is the only totally student-run production remaining on or off campus. In the past "C.V." and other recreational theatrical productions had experienced no difficulty securing technical assistance and adequate scheduling. With the advent of academic theatre and its obligations, the present and future of recreational theatre on the UMass campus appeared negligible.

Anatomically speaking, The Kidney-Shaped Heart was, in the tradition of the great musical comedies, not overly cerebral, but still raucous, glandular, satiric, and crammed with japes, diatribes, and darts aimed straight at the hearts of the faculty members. Paul Theroux, noted far and wide for his literary lead balloons, wrote the play and lyrics. The script had a long history of date-changes and the date of production was three months later than originally scheduled, but the show went on. The people laughed and were insulted in old "Varieties style." The fact that the show did go on proves that Campus Varieties will provide a recreational theatre for students on—or off campus.

Opera Workshop Performs Light Opera

OPERA WORKSHOP, directed by Dr. Doric J. Alviani, is a self-supporting music theatre organization working in cooperation with the Operetta Guild and the Department of Music. In recent years, the Workshop has successfully presented Humperdink's Hansel and Gretel, and Gian Carlo Menotti's Amahl and the Night Visitors as well as programs of light opera fare.

The chorus of shepherds and shepherdesses for this year's Amhal was a group of students from the Minnechaug Regional High School, specially prepared for the University production by Dwight Killam, Supervisor of Music, Wilbraham.

Present plans for Opera Workshop call for a merger with the Operetta Guild, a member of the American Educational Theatre Association and an affiliate of the Secondary School Theatre Conference.

Backstage preparations for Amahl

ORGANIZED in the spring of 1961, Musigals have risen to a new height of exceptionally fine singing. Twelve regulars and three alternates comprise the group, under the direction of Susan Spearen. They have not only delighted audiences here at Inter-Collegiate Sing, Interdorm Sing, Winter Carnival, and Mili Ball, but also have sung at Wiggins Tavern, The Lord Jeff, and the Jordan Marsh Christmas Caravan. In March the girls sang on a television music spectacular. Arrangements are written by E. Cervini of Springfield and Roger Tarpey of Amherst College. Swinging and smooth is the way to describe a Musigal Sound.

AN entirely new group this year, except one, the Statesmen are delighting everyone on campus with their singing. The only all-male singing group at the University, the seven Statesmen are directed by Bill Martin. In the past few years the group has sung solely off campus. This year however, they are performing primarily for the University. They have sung at Soph-Frosh night, Mili Ball, Winter Carnival, and various club meetings. Membership is on a competitive basis and is open to all male undergraduates.

THIS year the Campus Religious Council collected 641 pints of blood, setting a record for its annual drive. The Council also assisted in the Abbey drive and sponsored a lecture by Mr. Donald Moore on the "Philippines '63" program. The council is composed of members of the University administration and members of the various campus religious organizations.

The purpose of the Council is to establish a cooperative inter-relationship among all religious groups at the University, and to serve the general welfare of the University through joint activities.

Debaters Take Third Place In Yan-Con

RESOLVED! With this call to arms, the University Debating Society began work on the new year's proposition—that "The non-communist nations of the world should form an economic community."

The most significant feature of this year was the tremendous increase in membership. Many of these new debaters have already proven their forensic ability. With eleven experienced debaters returning next year, the Society is looking forward to an even more successful season.

The only sad note of the year was the sudden loss of the Society's respected friend and coach, Mr. Clarence Angell. Mr. Angell will always live in the minds of those who had the good fortune to learn from him.

APO Serves Campus Community

AN organization centered around the concept of aiding other individuals plays an active role in campus and community. This active role is evidenced by Alpha Phi Omega's management of the Homecoming and Amherst Fair Parades, its coatchecking and ushering during dances and other affairs. Outside the campus and town of Amherst, Alpha Phi Omega spends many hours in the north end of Springfield attempting to alleviate some of the pressures which develop there as a result of movement of people due to the re-development program. Other long worthwhile hours are taken up working at childrens' camps repairing them for their vacation uses.

This year, some of the projects of Gamma Sigma Sigma have been the co-sponsorship with A.P.O. of the Book exchange held at the start of each semester, the sale of boutonnieres for H.E.R. Weekend, Campus tours and a special project for the benefit of CARE.

Volunteers Respond

From All Quarters

For Abbey Blaze

LESS than three hours earlier, the Redmen had sustained a loss to Boston University at Alumni Field; students were making ready for Saturday night dates, and a cold, clear Autumn evening lay over the campus.

The Power Plant's shrill fire whistle got first attention, followed by Amherst's shrieking sirens. Abigail Adams House was ablaze.

Among the first on the scene were members of the University's Volunteer Fire Department. Some left supper, some left dates, and some left extracurricular duties to fight a stubborn, smokey fire which raged for three hours, and saw equipment brought in from seven outlying areas.

On call at all times to aid the Town of Amherst's fire department, the University's Volunteers have coped with house fires, barn fires, and forest fires as part of their duties.

The gutted dormitory was later inspected by a representative of the State Fire Marshal's office, who ascribed the cause of the blaze to an overheated hotplate.

Volunteer ROTC Units

Reveal New Emphasis

WITH the Pentagon's review of college ROTC, and increasing campus feeling for voluntary ROTC, emphasis has been placed on voluntary extracurricular military groups within the University's AROTC, AFROTC programs.

Leading the way for voluntary ROTC, scheduled to go into effect in the '63-'64 academic year, is the Air Force's competition drill team, the Flying Redmen. Annual performers at Washington's Cherry Blossom Festival, the Flying Redmen are consistently among the top drill teams in the nation.

Replacing the Army's defunct Bay State Rifles drill team, is the Special Forces under the command of former Ranger, Capt. Roy Fowler. This voluntary unit emphasizes physical fitness and mental alertness in the process of becoming a capable officer.

The Recreation Club engages in public service and liberal chunks of fun all at once

*More Clubs
Here Than
A Yearbook
Can Cover*

EVER try to satisfy 6,000 individual desires? The office of Recognized Student Organizations makes the attempt through the more than 200 organizations on its rolls. Running the gamut from religious, to political, to professional interest, to just plain fun clubs, a UMass student is sure to find one to his liking. In fact, there are more organizations than a yearbook can cover.

Dr. Dana Harlow

Class Adviser

A WARM smile and a trace of inbred drawl reflect the magnetizing qualities of the Centennial Class' adviser, Dr. Dana Harlow. A world traveler and an official observer at the 1958 World's Fair in Brussels, Dr. Harlow has been able to bestow numerous insights into campus topics from both his faculty position as Assistant Professor of Recreation and as a valuable friend.

He received his B.S. from West Virginia, M.S. from the University of Illinois, and his Ph.D. from the University of Geneva, Switzerland. Dr. Harlow's interest in the youth of the nation was clearly demonstrated when he held the position of director of the world's first camp for diabetic children. He has recently completed a manual for Municipal Recreation Boards in Massachusetts which has been described as of great importance to the Commonwealth.

The Centennial Class of 1963 formally acknowledges his consistent direction and guidance which promoted a successful 100th year.

Albert P. Madeira

Recipient of First Annual Metawampe Award

ALBERT P. MADEIRA has many talents when it comes to student-teacher relations. A member of the Collegian Publishing Board, faculty adviser to the Index, and faculty adviser to Roister Doisters, this English instructor is a familiar sight to most students.

With a green bookbag slung over his shoulder, and sandburgian white hair shining in the sun, this man is as much at home in the Hatch kibitzing with students over coffee as he is criticizing the latest Broadway-bound play. In both cases he has met with more than average success.

Thus Mr. Madeira was chosen by the Centennial Class as the first recipient of the Metawampe Award as a teacher who has taken time out to concern himself with students. Mr. Madeira joined the English Department here after receiving his B.A. from Bowdoin College in 1933, his M.A. from the University of New Hampshire in 1949.

Mr. Madeira gains recreation not only from his professional pursuits, but also hobbies, including photography, writing, and theater going.

The real difference between men
is energy.
A strong will,
a settled purpose, and invincible determination
can accomplish almost anything.

Fuller

From the end springs
new beginnings.
